A RIVER OF CEMENT

Workman Eggidio Lambutti of McPhail's Inc. supervises as cement pours out of a truck and is moved along a caterpillar-like conveyor. At its destination, the material will be poured to form the Atherton Avenue-San Marin Drive overpass, part of the Highway 101 bypass project in Novato. Working from both ends of the overpass, busy workmen hoped to complete the overpass' northbound lane today. It will take 11,000 yards of cement, or 4.4 million pounds, to do the job.

Crowe Won't Do Budget For Fairfax

Fairfax Town Administrator Robert E. Crowe, suspended indefinitely and facing trial for his part in a post-election fracas last month, has rejected a proposal that he prepare the 1974-75 town budget.

"I do not believe that there is any reason that I would be impaired from performing my duties as set forth in the municipal code," Crowe wrote in a letter to the council on Monday, adding he is "fully willing to return to work as city administrator."

Crowe said, however, that it would be impossible for him to perform "the job for which I was employed" under terms of a city offer last April 1 that he prepare and deliver to the city a budget for next fiscal year.

Instead, Crowe in his letter reaffirms a proposal made on his behalf by attorney Richard Timan in closed session with the council April 1, a proposal urging Crowe be allowed to retain a number of powers and duties while awaiting resolution of court action.

According to that proposal, "Mr. Crowe believes that in order to be effective in his job, it is necessary for the following powers to be retained by him: control of officers and employees. . .representation of town. . .advice as to finances, preparation of the budget, purchase of supplies. . .devotion of entire time to duties and performance of delegated duties."

Crowe in his letter this week said that such powers are essential to preparation of the budget.

Crowe's most recent council communication also declares he was suspended improperly by the city, saying there is no basis under town code or law for his suspension.

"I have committed no breach of my duties as city administrator, and as regards the criminal charges pending against me, I am fully convinced of my own innocence of such charges, and

Woman Wins Battle For Beachfront Home

Permit Denial Reversed By Coastal Commission

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

LONG BEACH — A Stinson Beach property owner, after a four-month battle costing her almost $5,000 yesterday won permission to build a home on her beachfront lot.

The permit, however, bars her from building for one year to give time for possible purchase of the property to preserve it for public use.

The decision by the California Coastal Zone Conservation Commission was a rare reversal of a permit denial by one of its regional commissions. The North Central Coast Regional Commission had rejected the permit unanimously twice.

Its second denial last month was despite a warning from the state commission that some use of the land must be allowed.

The applicant, Barbara Alban, appealed the second denial to the state commission, ignoring a declaration by the regional commission's legal adviser, Deputy Atty. Gen. William Chamberlain, that such an appeal was not permitted.

After a half-hour hearing on the issue, the state commission voted 8-2 to grant Miss Alban her permit, the bare two-thirds majority needed from the 12-member commission. She reluctantly accepted a second condition that the home be only one story high, which she said will limit it to about 900 square feet.

The commission did not say where the money could come from to buy the lot. Miss Alban has estimated she has invested more than $30,000 in buying it and planning a home. The additional $5,000 just to get the permit was largely in legal fees, she said.

San Francisco Supervisor Robert Mendelsohn, the regional commission's representative on the state commission, was absent.

The audience applauded the commission's vote to grant a permit to Miss Alban. Commissioners noted the lot was the last buildable one on the beach, and that a house stood on it until a fire burned it down in 1960.

The parcel is at 30 Calle del Embarcadero.

The state commission's action presumably made moot a suit Miss Alban had filed against the regional commission in Marin Superior Court.

Span Discount Books Hit Again

Elimination of the 25-cent discount the Golden Gate Bridge District gives bus and ferry passengers who buy books of tickets for transbay trips got another boost yesterday.

The district's joint transportation and finance-auditing committee, which voted 5-to-4 to drop the discount July 1, was the third committee of directors to recommend the action.

The full board fell two votes short Friday of the 10 needed to eliminate the discount. Yesterday's endorsement will go back to the board at 10 a.m. on April 26 when it meets in toll plaza offices.

Board president Stephan C. Leonoudakis of San Francisco argued the additional $120 a year it will cost a transit user is "a very, very small increase." The step, which would raise about $1.4 million next fiscal year alone, is needed to finance pay hikes for district employees, he said.

Two of Marin's representatives on the 18-member bridge board argued fruitlessly against the action. Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. objected there had been no discussion of alternatives such as raising fares in some zones and removing the discount in stages over two years.

Arrigoni scored the fact that the $120 a year in extra cost for transit users would be twice the extra cost imposed by the toll hike on commuters who drive to work.

Director Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley added no transit fare changes should be made pending a one-year $96,000 study of the subject which recently began. He also argued funds for pay hikes should come instead by lowering the minimum district reserve from $7.5 million to $5 million.

Leonoudakis countered that the higher reserve is needed to attract more federal matching funds to expand the transit system.

Eliminating the discount, Arrigoni said, would assure defeat of the county's June 4 ballot measure to hike the maximum property tax rate for transit from a nickel to 25 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Rodino's Warning On Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said today "we mean business" in demanding tape recordings of 42 presidential conversations. A refusal to fully honor the panel's subpoena could be considered an impeachable offense, he said.

The committee, which Rodino said will begin hearing evidence in its impeachment probe about May 7, issued a subpoena last week giving the White House until April 25 to turn over taped conversations between President Nixon and various top aides in February, March and April of last year.

The White House has promised to supply a "conclusive and comprehensive" answer by early next week, but some aides have indicated that conversations dealing with national security and non-Watergate matters would be screened out.

Rodino was asked during an interview on the NBC-TV Today Show if the reported White House editing strategy was satisfactory to the committee.

"No," he replied. "This would mean that the White House would be making the final determination. This could not be a proper inquiry, a comprehensive inquiry unless we were to make the determination as to what is necessary. The committee in the last instance is the determing factor. That's the way it's going to be."

Asked what kind of message the committee was attempting to give the White House, Rodino replied:

"We have to indicate quite strongly that we mean business and that the House has given us this authority and therefore this would be a refusal not only to comply with the request of the committee but with the House of Representatives as the sole power to inquire in impeachment proceedings."

Annual Ban On Shellfish Due May 1

The annual six-month ban on harvesting certain shellfish on the coastline begins May 1, the state Health Department announced today.

"Warnings about eating mussels and clams during the summer and fall may seem silly to some people, but earlier in our history deaths from dinoflagellate poisoning were commonplace," said Dr. William Mayer, state health director.

(Marin County has not had a case of shellfish poisoning since 1964, when four persons became ill after eating oysters from Drake's Bay. A spokesman for the records division of the state health department said that no illness has been caused by the shellfish in the state for two years.)

A spokesman for the Environmental Control Office of the Marin County Health Department said that signs would be posted along the coast, warning against taking mussels, except for bait.

The signs also advise shellfish lovers to wash clams thoroughly before cooking, and to only eat the white meat.

Mayer said that dinoflagellates, which are microscopic organisms on which most shellfish feed during the warm season, produce a toxin for which there is no antidote.

Vocational Education Master Plan Proposed

Marin County schools should develop a "countywide master plan" for vocational education, the Marin County Grand Jury has recommended.

In an interim report released by the grand jury's education committee, vocational education was described as "fragmented both within each of the school districts and in its lack of coordination among the several school district."

It says "parents are often unrealistic in believing their sons and daughters must go to college or the alternative will be to terminate their formal education, with economic and social loss."

It adds that vocational education should be given greater status "in order to influence parental attitudes."

The four-page document provides little new to what is already being thrashed out by various vocational education groups in the county.

(A long-range plan is being worked on now by a committee of concerned citizens, including Bette Wallace, a trustee of the Tamalpais High School District; Frances Compton, a trustee of the Marin Community College District, and Ray K. Bolinger, administrator of Marin General Hospital, among others.)

The grand jury said the public "generally has been deluded" into thinking vocational education is excessively expensive. It said the benefits far outweigh their cost.

It said such a program should be a joint effort among local schools and colleges and a joint powers agreement should be explored.

"More and better" career counsellors should be hired by county schools and private industry's involvement should be expanded, it recommended.

Stans Claims Complete Innocence

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans testified today that "on my oath I never did anything to help Robert Vesco in any way and I never asked anyone to do anything to help Robert Vesco."

He flatly denied that he had conspired with former Attorney General John N. Mitchell to impede a federal investigation of the international financier in return for a $200,000 cash contribution by Vesco to the 1972 Nixon campaign.

He also denied lying to the grand jury that indicted the two former Nixon cabinet members.

Testifying calmly but emphatically in a soft voice as the end of the Mitchell-Stans trial neared, the former Midwestern accountant and self-made millionaire also told the jury of the critical illness of his wife, Kathleen, during much of the time covered by the indictment, detailing how he had restricted his work schedule in order to spend all weekends and all evenings except Monday and Tuesday with her in Walter Reed Hospital in Washington.

Mrs. Stans contracted a rare blood disease in August, 1972, and was near death at times.

She returned to the hospital in January 1973 with hepatitis and returned again in May with another form of hepatitis.

Federal judge Lee P. Gagliardi informed the nine-man, three-woman jury that he was admitting the testimony about Mrs. Stans "solely as indicating his (Stans') state of mind at the time." Defense attorney Walter J. Bonner also had said he wanted the testimony presented to show that Stans was preoccuppied with his wife's illness when he testified to the grand jury in March and April of 1973.

Stans yesterday had denied, step by step, all the charges against him and had sworn that he kept Vesco's $200,000 contribution a secret— along with $40 million from others—as a matter of duty.

Bill Would Force Oil Firms Out Of Retailing

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill requiring oil companies to sell their gasoline stations was introduced yesterday by three legislators, including Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

The measure would compel the companies to sell both the stations they own and those they have franchised. It is designed to break up the companies' control over prices.

About 10 per cent of the state's retail stations are owned directly by oil companies, and up to 80 per cent are franchised by them to "independent" retailers, according to Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger, a supporter of the bill.

Younger said the legislation would force the companies to compete for sales to retail outlets, with resulting lower prices to the consumer.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Wilson Makes Visit To Ireland

BELFAST (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson, heavily guarded by British troops, made a surprise visit to Northern Ireland today to discuss the sharp escalation of violence in the province.

Wilson

Wilson flew by helicopter and a Royal Air Force jet to Belfast as the death toll in 4½ years of violence in the province neared 1,000.

Both the British Army and police have placed the official death toll in Northern Ireland at 998 soldiers and civilians.

A spokesman said the prime minister would meet with Brian Faulkner, Protestant chief executive of the province's new local government, and Faulkner's Roman Catholic deputy, Gerry Fitt.

De Gaulle Letter

PARIS (UPI) — The son of the late President Charles de Gaulle stirred up a political controversy today by issuing an open letter supporting Gaullist presidential candidate Jacques Chaban-Delmas.

Rear Adm. Philippe de Gaulle, in the letter, described Chaban-Delmas as the "only man to beat Communist-backed Socialist candidate Francois Mitterand."

Critics said the move by the admiral, only son of the founder of the Gaullist regime, violated French military curbs against officers getting into electoral struggles or public debates.

Thaw Is Sought

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's six-week-old Labor government is making a strong pitch to warm up relations with the United States, government officials said today.

The Laborites are seeking to thaw out the slight frost which developed in personal contacts between U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and former Prime Minister Edward Heath in the closing months of the Conservative administration, officials said.

Hits Poor, Too

BOSTON (UPI) — High blood pressure afflicts the poor as much as the rich, a panel of medical experts said yesterday.

Furthermore, they said, an estimated 25 million Americans suffer from high blood pressure and at least half of them are unaware of the threat to their lives.

Members of the panel also said the rate of high blood pressure was high among blacks and other minority groups.

About 80 per cent of those with high blood pressure can respond to medical treatment, doctors said, with a good chance of averting either heart attacks or strokes.

Biggest Winner

SALVADOR, Brazil (UPI) — A few days ago, Francisco Couto Portela, 25, was earning less than $200 a month working as an accountant's assistant in Salvador, capital city of Bahia state.

Now he is worth more than $2 million.

Portela was the only person in Brazil who chose correctly the results of 13 soccer games played throughout the country last weekend. It got him the world's largest lottery prize — $2,291,000. He managed it by betting 60 cents.

Fierce Fighting

SAIGON (UPI) — North and South Vietnamese troops mauled each other in fierce fighting for a Central Highlands outpost, killing or wounding 2,414 soldiers in three days of clashes, the Saigon military command said today.

A command spokesman accused the North Vietnamese of using poison gas in driving government rangers out of Base 711, a temporary field outpoet near the Cambodian border, 220 miles north of Saigon.

The command said government forces killed 55 Communists yesterday in the third day of fighting around the outpost, the latest major clash in a two-month upsurge of Communist activity across South Vietnam.

Fair Play With News Media Urged

ATLANTA (UPI) — Two former White House officials yesterday urged the Nixon administration to be more open with the news media as a way of restoring sagging credibility.

Former Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson, who was fired by Nixon for his refusal to dismiss special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox, said President Nixon has viewed Watergate in defensive terms, instead of trying to restore confidence in his administration.

"Today, there is a need to be informed, a need for credibility greater than ever," Richardson told the American Society of Newspaper Editors meeting here. "The only way of meeting this crisis of confidence is by greater emphasis on informing people and getting the truth.

"We must insist in dealing with those that represent us that they tell us the truth. This, I feel, means that we put a political premium on openness and truth," he said.

Richardson said Watergate was more serious than previous instances of corruption in government because it dealt with abuses of the electoral process itself.

"It has involved the abuse of power by those in a position to intrude upon our lives, and if corrupted, to exert pressure on any one of us," he said. He mentioned abuses of the FBI and the Internal Revenue Service.

Herbert Klein, one-time White House communications director, told the newsaper editors it is time for the White House and the press to "call off the war" they have been waging and get on with informing the public.

"Call off the war by the White House with more, frank news conferences," he urged. "Call off the emotions which are a part of every news conference."

Appearing on a panel discussion, Klein said the White House must earn the right to be trusted, "not by rhetoric but by deeds."

Hawkish Ellsberg Role Is Revealed

MEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) — Adm. Elmo Zumwalt says he opposed involvement of U.S. ground troops in Vietnam in the early '60s but was overruled by Daniel Ellsberg.

Zumwalt, chief of naval operations, said yesterday that when he was a lower echelon naval officer in late 1963 he wrote a report stating "our national interest would not be served by becoming militarily involved" in Vietnam.

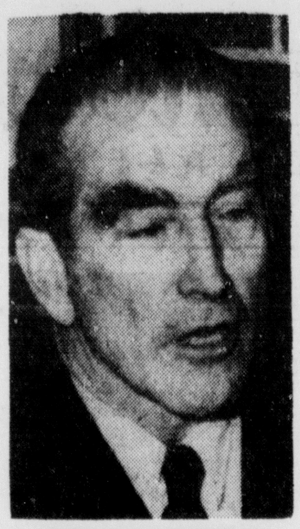

"The superior that overruled my recommendation was named Daniel Ellsberg," Zumwalt told an audience at Tufts University. The admiral said Ellsberg wrote a report of his own recommending that U.S. ground forces be committed to Vietnam.

Zumwalt said he wrote that if the United States did become involved more deeply anyway, he recommended "massive bombing" of military-related targets in North Vietnam and limitation of ground troops to advisors.

Ellsberg joined the Defense Department in 1964, working on decision-making involving Vietnam. An early supporter of the war, he later grew disenchanted and he made the famous Pentagon Papers public in 1971.

Zumwalt said one negative result of the Vietnam War was the development of an antimilitaristic spirit in the U.S. which resulted in the reduction of the percentage of the federal budget for military purposes.

Also, he said, while the United States was spending "up to $30 billion" a year to wage war in Vietnam, the Soviet Union was spending it money on developing new weapons. He said the Soviet Navy now has four times as many ships as does the U.S. Navy.

ADM. ELMO ZUMWALT
Opposed ground troops

Zumwalt also said U.S. sailors had proved "remarkably adept" in turning over their military duties to the South Vietnamese. He said the Soviets had not learned a similar lesson, as shown by their "heavy-handed" efforts to help the Egyptians in the Middle East.

Ferry Is Sold

NEW YORK (UPI) — The worn out Staten Island ferry (Gold Star Mother) was put up for auction yesterday. The high bid of $20,100 came from a contractor who wants to convert the 2,126-ton boat into a floating restaurant.

President Reaffirms Latin Pledge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon last night outlined for the foreign ministers of 24 Latin American nations his administration's view of the hemisphere's "new dialogue," initiated in Mexico City earlier this year.

"The agenda for the new dialogue is peace, political freedom and economic growth," Nixon said at the black-tie dinner at the White House.

He also reaffirmed an earlier pledge that the United States will not intervene in the domestic affairs of other hemispheric nations and promised continued U.S. support in trade matters, economic aid, science and technology and energy.

Watergate Defendant Also Seeking Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Subpoenas to produce White House tapes are coming at President Nixon from all directions —the latest from Charles Colson, one of the defendants in the Watergate cover-up case.

Colson, a former presidential aide indicted March 1 in the Watergate cover-up along with seven other ex-White House and Nixon reelection officials, asked yesterday that a subpoena be issued for certain tapes and materials before his scheduled Sept. 9 trial.

The request, made in a two paragraph motion filed with a U.S. District Court, also asked that Colson's lawyers be allowed to inspect the materials.

The action followed by one day a request for a similar subpoena by Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski. Jaworski filed a lengthy affidavit Tuesday seeking the access to tapes and other documents involving 64 meetings and telephone conversations between Nixon and several former top aides from June 20, 1972 to June 4, 1973.

In his affidavit, Jaworski said he was seeking the subpoena "solely for the purpose of preventing any postponement of the trial or delay during the conduct of the trial."

Jaworski asked the court to order the White House to answer the subpoena by 10 a.m. EDT April 23.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, is expected to act on Jarowski's request when he returns from vacation May 1.

PREPROCESSING PLANT

Recycling Factory Taking Shape

By NELS JOHNSON

The county's first preprocessing recycling factory is quietly taking shape in a cavernous warehouse on a one-acre lot in the heart of East San Rafael's bustling industrial areas.

Dubbed Marin Environmental Cooperative and headed by Neill Smith, an energetic recycling advocate and environmental planner, the factory at 502 Irwin Street is equipped to bale several tons of paper an hour.

And although a $100,000 baling machine was idle on a recent visit, the products of its work were stacked nearby: dozens of 1,000-pound bales of compacted cardboard, newspapers and other paper waste.

Soon, the factory will include a shredding machine to compact aluminum cans, and another costly baling machine capable of enveloping 15 tons of newsprint hourly, the 45-year-old Smith said.

The baling plant also serves as a receptacle for scrap metal collected by Marin Environmental Cooperative. The dusty Irwin Street lot is strewn with chunks of iron and steel, car doors and other rusting artifacts, all bound for recycling.

But, since recycling is an expensive enterprise haunted by slim profit margins, Marin Environmental Cooperative is losing money and is sustained for now by investments from Smith's personal fortune.

Smith, whose previous recycling endeavor, Whole Systems Inc., collapsed in 1971, said his latest venture will be out of the red within a year as the firm doubles or even triples its weekly intake of solid wastes.

Currently, Marin Environmental Cooperative handles weekly about 10 tons of newsprint worth $26 to $32 a ton. 40 tons of cardboard worth $45 to $55 a ton; a ton of aluminum worth about 11 cents a pound and five tons of scrap metal worth $20 to $40 a ton, according to Smith.

Smith said the cooperative, staffed by 11 employees, was established last spring to spur local garbage companies to begin recycling programs by providing them with a marketplace for recyclables.

By November, when the cooperative began operations, several garbage firms had indeed established recycling programs, Smith said, but they turned to Marin Sanitary Service, the county's largest disposal firm, rather than him as the middleman to sell newsprint to Bay Area pulp firms.

A bittersweet smile glazed Smith's bearded face as he related the ironic twist of events that has put his firm in competition with others interested in recycling. "It's a little bit unfortunate, and definitely financially unfortunate," he said.

"But I'm not a disappointed idealist. Recycling is going to happen and I think we will have a place in it," he said, adding that the 500 tons of solid wastes generated daily in Marin is "plenty to go around."

Smith said he will bring this message to the Novato Sanitary District board in several weeks, when he expects to complete work on a proposal to allow all interested in recycling to work together in a spirit of cooperation.

Smith noted that his firm recently became embroiled in a flap in Novato after the Novato Disposal Service complained that the Marin Environmental Cooperative was collecting cardboard locally despite a city franchise granting exclusive cardboard rights to the garbage company.

The matter is now in limbo as the Novato Sanitary District studies the situation, Smith said.

Milk Prices In Novato Schools Up

Elementary students in the Novato Unified School District will be paying more for milk starting May 1.

The hike from 6 to 8 cents a carton because of rising milk costs was approved by the district board Tuesday night.

In the secondary schools, where there is no federal subsidy, the price will remain at 10 cents a carton, assistant superintendent Eugene De Brecht said.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

PLEASANT VALLEY — Received a request from the Pleasant Valley School Parent-Teacher Association for blacktop at the playground and carpeting in the school.

SCHOOL CALENDAR — Approved a 1974-75 school calendar with 176 teaching days and including a Martin Luther King Day, Jan. 13 and a President's Day, Feb. 17.

SPECIAL MEETING — Scheduled a special meeting at 8 p.m. April 30 at Novato High School to discuss junior high school attendance areas, with the next regular meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Novato High School.

Commission Eyes Open Space Role

The Novato Parks and Recreation Commission is interested in serving as the city's open space committee, according to parks and recreation director Lester C. Russell.

An ad hoc committee is now serving as an open space committee and commissioners have indicated they could assume that role, he said.

The commission also has approved applying for federal funds, possibly up to $60,000, to complete development at Miwok Park.

Flournoy Says Local Taxes' Role Lessens

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The part local taxes play in the total revenues of California cities is decreasing although the taxes are reaching record highs, according to state Controller Houston Flournoy.

During fiscal 1972-73, Flournoy said yesterday, the cities collected more than $1.6 billion in locally imposed taxes, an increase of $171 million or 10.3 per cent over the previous year.

"But this amounted to only 50.6 per cent of the cities' total revenues as compared to 53.1 per cent the prior year," he added.

Property taxes of $860.3 million represented an increase of $65.3 million over the previous year but accounted for only 26.25 per cent of the total revenues as compared to 28.43 per cent in 1971-72, he said.

The revenues from other agencies totaled $933.2 million, up $257.7 million from 1971-72.

College Campus Bids Way Above Estimate

Work on the Indian Valley Colleges campus suffered a new setback last night as the Marin Community College District trustees found themselves faced with inflation-hiked bids for site preparation and utility work that were more than $126,000 above budget.

The trustees postponed action on the problem to a special meeting at 8 p.m. next Wednesday, according to Earlene Jones, district publicist.

Dr. John A. Graham, district superintendent, reported that the bids exceeded architects' estimates by at least 19 per cent. Last February, the board budgeted $649,844 for the work; the three bids opened Monday ranged from $776,000 to $841,000.

Grasham reported that contractors apparently included a large contingency factor in the bids to allow for expected labor cost increases during the year the work will take. Contractors also have been unable to get firm price quotations on lumber, asphalt and other materials that recently have been subject to rapid price changes, Grasham added.

The board can either rebid the entire project — with little expectation of any better bids — or split the work into phases, which would require new approvals from the state.

Graham and the staff recommended the board accept the low bid by C. R. Frederick Co.

Community College District Board Also:

MINORITY — Voted 5-0 to approve the long-debated affirmative action policy requiring recruiting of women and minority members for district jobs. The policy failed to gain the necessary four votes at the board's April 4 meeting.

SALARIES — Received and said trustees would review the salary and benefits proposals for 1974-75 from the certificated and classified employee groups in the district. The certificated (teaching and administrative) employees asked a 3 per cent raise for professional incentive and a 15 per cent cost of living raise. The classified (nonteaching) employees asked 14 per cent raises and other adjustments.

NEW JOBS — Approved recruiting an affirmative action officer to administer the new minority and women's hiring plan, but deferred action on a staff-recommended new post of data processing programmer. Appointed Diane Wickstrom as coordinator for the women's educational re-entry program through June 30.

SUITS — Approved asking the appellate courts to advance the trial date for the Valentine vs. Town of Ross suit over Corte Madera Creek flood control work; postponed to 7 p.m. Wednesday a closed session on litigation over the new library building on the Kentfield campus.

LIBRARY — Approved joining the Marin and San Francisco libraries, Dominican College and San Quentin Prison in seeking a $310,000 federal grant for a computerized book trading program between the various libraries.

MEETINGS — Set 7 p.m. Wednesday in the district office for the closed session on library litigation, 8 p.m. the same day for reviewing the Indian Valley bids and for a possible workshop on district organization; 7 p.m. May 1 for a closed session with the board's negotiators on teacher pay requests and 8 p.m. for the public regular board meeting.

Conversion Of Schools Announced

Adaline E. Kent elementary and junior high schools will be converted to a middle school for sixth, seventh and eighth grade students in September 1975.

Kentfield School District trustees last night accepted that recommendation from a citizens advisory committee and authorized Supt. Eugene C. Peters to begin planning the schools' conversion.

All kindergarten through fifth grade students at Kent will attend either Greenbrae or Anthony G. Bacich School when the conversion is made. The change will require extensive redrawing of attendance areas within the district and parents will be consulted in planning the changes, Peters said.

He said an audience of about 100 persons last night strongly supported the conversion.

The citizens committee also recommended that Kent junior high students begin the middle program in September, 1974. Peters said trustees also approved that recommendation noting that the entire school year could be used for accustoming teachers and students to the middle school approach.

No Building Ban

A headline in yesterday's Independent-Journal had Rohnert Park City Council imposing a moratorium on new building projects because of the present sewage load. However, the council declined to impose the ban until further studies.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Dorothy Fisher, the world's first woman heart transplant, yesterday celebrated the fifth anniversary of the operation by Dr. Christiaan Barnard.

Economy Stumbles In Bad Way

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. economy stumbled toward recession in the first three months of 1974, the Commerce Department reported today, with output falling at the biggest rate in 16 years and inflation rising at the fastest pace in more than two decades.

Economic growth, as measured by the Gross National Product (GNP), fell 5.8 per cent between January and March, putting an end to three years of uninterrupted expansion.

Cutbacks in the auto industry —a direct result of the nation's energy shortage—plus a continuing slump in home and apartment construction, were the key factors in the first quarter falloff, the department said.

GNP measures the value of the entire range of goods and services produced during a given period. It is considered the most comprehensive indicator of a nation's economic health.

The first quarter decline was the biggest three-month drop since a 9.2 per cent falloff in the first quarter of 1958. Another minus growth figure in the current quarter — April through June—would meet the generally accepted definition of recession.

Prices rose 10.8 per cent between January and March, the biggest inflationary jump since a 13 per cent rise in 1951.

Suit Filed To Block Housing Plan

Seven neighbors of a proposed 102-unit housing project for the elderly in Kentfield have filed suit in Marin Superior Court to block the development.

The suit claims it would be illegal for the county to issue a use permit for the project at the old Dominican Priory because the parcel at 217 Laurel Grove Avenue is zoned for single-family homes.

If permitted, the development would "destroy the single-family low density character of the neighborhood," according to the suit, filed Tuesday by Novato attorney Joseph A. Forest. Named as defendant in the County of Marin.

Plaintiffs are attorney Louis F. Hawkins, who has been fighting the project for nearly three years, and his wife, Delores C., J.M. Kelly, George and Betty Schrhe and Robert and Carol Ryder.

Farallon Trip Places Available

Reservations are still available for the Marin Audubon Society's field trip Sunday to the Farallon Islands, the society has announced.

The all-day trip does not stop at the islands nor are any passengers put ashore. However, expert bird authorities will be on the Blue Horizon to give information about the wildlife.

Reservations may be made through Chairman Richard Brown at 490 Estado Way, Novato.

Those going are advised to dress warmly and take their own food and beverages. The trip starts at 7 a.m. at the Blue Horizon pier in Sausalito.

CROWE

such charges are mere accusations until the matter is brought to trial," he wrote.

Crowe also compares his plight with that of Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke "who is also pending criminal action and has certainly not been suspended from his duties."

Crowe also declares improper the council's recruitment of a replacement for him, saying town code requires a grace period of at least 90 days after a municipal election before terminating an incumbent city manager's services.

In addition, Crowe claims that two members of the city council that suspended him had "conflict of interests" in the matter. "I refer here specifically to Mr. Frank Egger, who was directly involved in the incident which resulted in the criminal charges which were brought against me, and to Mr. Albert Gately, who was a direct witness and participant in that incident," Crowe said.

The town council will again consider Crowe's status as a town employee at 8 p.m. Monday in the Fairfax Women's Club.

Residents in the "newer sections of Black Point," concerned about a recent series of burglaries are considering hiring a security patrol, according to Clarence Bracey, corresponding secretary of the Black Point Improvement Club.

Measures to counteract the burglaries were discussed at a recent meeting and "approximately 30 households elected to look into the possibility of acquiring an authorized security officer to patrol the area and to alternate hours from day to day," Bracey said.

The Marin City Alioto for Governor Committee will hold a campaign rally from noon to 4 p.m. Saturday near the community's flea market.

Speakers will be Morris Philps, San Francisco Redevelopment Agency director for the Bayview and Hunters Point areas, and Herman Griffen, a member of San Francisco's Social Services Commission.

A roast pig will be carved for sandwiches and a band will play.

Also at the event will be a voter registration booth and a car wash held at the adjacent service station by the Youth for Alioto.

FELSON — Jack R. Felson of Forest Knolls, candidate for the Democratic nomination in the Ninth Assembly District, will speak at 7:30 p.m. today at the Five Corners Community Center in Petaluma. Wine, cakes, coffee and old-time movies will be provided.

KORTUM — Dr. William M. Kortum of Petaluma, candidate for Sonoma County supervisor in the Second District, will open his campaign at 6:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Petaluma Women's Club. Dinner will be at 7:30 p.m., followed by entertainment.

FILANTE — Dr. William J. Filante of Kentfield, candidate for Marin Municipal Water District's Division 3 seat, has opened campaign headquarters in his home, 33 Wolfe Grade.

Filante urged all candidates to join him in reporting all contributions of time, money and material, including those not required by law to be reported.

A coffee for Dr. Filante will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the San Anselmo home of Mrs. Corinne Anderson, 2 Park Way.

New York Bar Is Reportedly Studying Nixon

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York City Bar Association is investigating possible professional misconduct by President Nixon, former Atty. Gen. John Mitchell and three other Nixon administration attorneys, the New York Daily News reported today.

The News said that the allegations regarding Nixon were not specifically known, but were thought to be Watergate-inspired.

Others named in the Daily News copyrighted story included David Young, former co-director of the "plumbers" group and Gordon Strachan, former aide to H.R. Haldeman. A fifth individual was unidentified.

Panel Asks Explanation On Growth

Uncertain of the state of Petaluma's planning policy in the wake of a federal court decision striking down the city growth control ordinance, the planning commission has requested City Atty. Edouard E. Robert to explain at the April 30 meeting.

Planning Director Frank B. Gray said the city has still not received a written order from U.S. District Judge Lloyd H. Burke, who in January declared unconstitutional Petaluma's policy restricting growth to 500 residential units a year.

The planners were faced Tuesday with a rezoning request to change from planned commercial to planned unit development status a site on the southeast side of the Washington Square Shopping Center in East Petaluma.

Young America Homes wishes to build 128 multifamily units on the site.

Gray said the commissioners continued the hearing to the May 7 meeting pending advisement from Robert.

The commissioners were concerned, Gray said, that a reversal of Burke's decision in a possible future appeal could unfairly affect those seeking permission to build if some projects were approved before the decision.

Gray said he had no idea when Burke's written order, long anticipated by the city, would arrive.

The Petaluma Planning Commission also:

DESIGNS — Approved site designs for a duplex at 34-36 post street, a single-family unit at 515 Baker Street and a restaurant at the northeast corner of McDowell Boulevard.

DECLARATIONS — Approved a report that no significant effect on the environment will result from the proposed Lakeville Shopping Center at the northwest corner of Lakeville Highway and East Washington Street, an office building at 16 Fourth Street and a medical building addition at 1128 B Street.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned until 7:30 p.m. May 7.

Horse Care Course Will Be Conducted

The Humane Education Center will conduct its annual horse care course starting at 10 a.m. April 27 at the Marin County Humane Society, 171 Bel Marin Keys Boulevard, Ignacio.

Classes will be offered for five weeks at no cost and are open to all interested persons.

Registration can be made at the center until 9:30 a.m. April 27.

KILLER SUSPECT — The San Francisco Police Department yesterday released these composite pictures of a suspect sought as the "Zebra killer," a black man who has senselessly shot and killed 12 whites since November, 1973. Rewards in the case now total $30,000. Both drawings are the same man, but as described by different witnesses.

Proof Against The Coyote Asked

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The executive director of tte Sierra Club says ranchers will have to do better than "trade local anecdotes" if they are to prove that coyotes kill significant numbers of sheep.

Mike McCloskey told newsmen at the Western Governors' Conference on Agriculture yesterday that the sheep industry has yet to come up with a good set of statistics on how much livestock coyotes kill, despite its claims that the dog-like wild animals are to blame for massive losses.

"What we always get down to is numerous local anecdotes about flocks being wiped out," he said. "But we can't resolve these things by trading local anecdotes."

"I wish I'd had my camera with me," replied Reuben E. Pankey, past president of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association. "I've seen coyotes tearing up cattle on my own ranch."

Pankey, representing the National Cattlemen's Association, said coyotes have become so numerous in New Mexico since predator poisons were banned they have changed their diet from sheep to cattle, garbage and even people.

He said that two girls sleeping in their backyard at Los Alamos, N.M., were attacked by the predators.

"I believe what ranchers and farmers tell me," he said. "Since the ban on poisons, the (sheep) herds have disappeared to the point that it is no longer economical to stay in business, so the sheepmen are switching to cattle."

McCloskey and Pankey were speakers during a panel discussion on agriculture's impact on the environment.

The Sierra Club official from San Francisco said statistics he has seen show sheep losses due to coyotes ranging from 1 ½ to 4 per cent.

"But the agriculture people say they are much higher," he said.

McCloskey said the Interior Department now is conducting an in-depth study of the nation's coyote population. He also said the Sierra Club does not object to some government predator control programs.

"We support the government trapper type programs, and the hunting of coyotes from helicopters," he said.

But the Sierra Club cannot support the renewed use of predator poisons, unless "we can be absolutely certain" that they do not harm other animals, he said.

Complaint Ties Four To SLA's Activities

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Alameda County District Attorney Lowell Jensen yesterday named four persons as members of the Symbionese Liberation Army which abducted Patricia Hearst in February.

The identities were disclosed in a complaint filed by Jensen on grounds the four falsfied information about themselves in applying for driver's licenses.

They were identified as William T. Harris, 29, Oakland, his wife, Emily, 27, Angela Atwood, 25, Oakland, and William L. Wolfe, 23, also Oakland.

Jensen said the Harrises and Miss Atwood frequented a home used by the SLA as a meeting place.

Municipal Judge J. Robert Friborg set Harris' bail at $10,500. Another local judge, George McDonald, set the bail for the rest at $5,000 each.

All four "are linked with SLA investigations of the murder of Dr. Marcus Foster, the kidnaping of Patricia Hearst and the Hibernia Bank robbery," the county prosecutor said.

Foster was slain Nov. 6 in a parking lot near his office. Miss Hearst was kidnaped in February, and the bank was robbed Monday.

Blacks Will Be Quizzed In Slayings

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, calling it an "extraordinary situation," said police will stop many citizens today for questioning in a rash of random street killings.

All of the victims — 12 dead and six wounded —have been white and their assailants have been described by witnesses as black.

The latest victim, gunned down Tuesday night, was Nelson T. Shields, a 23-year-old son of a DuPont Corp. executive who had arrived in the Bay Area only about two weeks ago and was staying in Marin with friends at the Kappas Yacht Harbor north of Sausalito.

"We ask the cooperation of citizens and we want to assure them that we will be mindful of their constitutional rights," Alioto said. He said police have "blanketed this town with auto patrols and walking patrols" to carry out what is known as "Operation Zebra."

Police Chief Donald Scott said that only persons who match the description in the police drawings will be stopped.

Four Blacks Suspected In Prison Breakout Try

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four suspected members of the Black Liberation Army (BLA) used an acetylene torch last night in an unsuccessful attempt to spring three accused police killers from the Manhattan House of Detention, authorities reported.

A police department spokesman said it was apparently the second attempt by the BLA to spring the three suspects from the facility popularly called "The Tombs."

Police identified the four in yesterday's incident as Michael Alston, about 22; Howard William Simmons, about 24; Frankie Mae Adams, 28.; and Collette Ali, 22.

Last Dec. 28, four suspected BLA members were arrested in a sewer near the Tombs during an alleged attempt to break into the institution, but the case was thrown out of court for lack of evidence.

Alston and Simmons were among the four involved in a December escape incident, the police spokesman said.

Corrections Commissioner Benjamin H. Malcolm and police officials said that in the latest incident the four suspects entered the Tombs at 7:10 p.m. yesterday with three handguns and the cutting torch concealed in a brown bag.

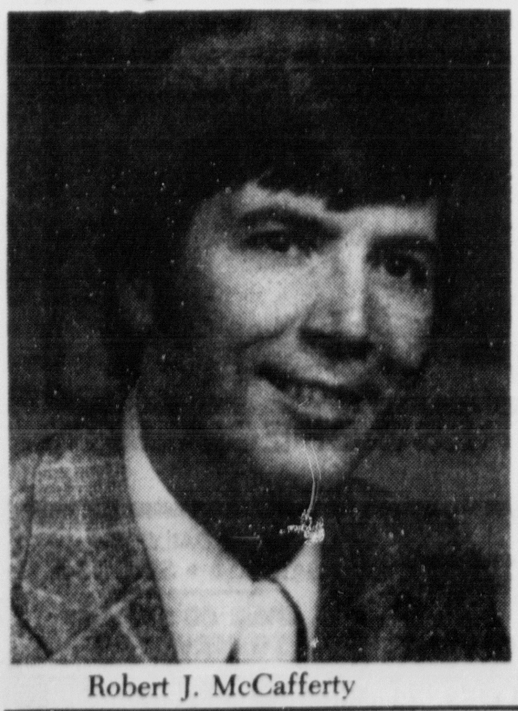

They signed in to visit suspected BLA members Francisco Torres, Henry Brown and Albert Washington, all accused of the 1971 murder of police officers Waverly Jones and Joseph Piagentini.

When they arrived at the unattended visitors' room they immediately set up the acetylene torch and began cutting a hole in the glass and steel-enclosed prisoners' booth

McCarthy Declares He's Only Republican Who Can Beat Burton

Sean McCarthy, of San Rafael, candidate for the Republican nomination in the Fifth Congressional District, yesterday declared he is the only GOP candidate who can beat the likely Democratic nominee in the race, Assemblyman John L. Burton of San Francisco.

Pointing to his own past work with the poor, McCarthy argued he is the only Republican contestant in the election who knows how to get along with the same groups of people who have supported Burton in the past.

McCarthy and the two other GOP candidates for the nomination, Thomas O. Caylor and Jean M. Wall of San Francisco, spoke at the San Rafael Lions lunch at the Elks Club. A fourth announced candidate, Anne Fibush, did not qualify for the ballot because of late and incomplete nomination papers.

Caylor branded Burton as a member of "the leading radical family in American politics." Rep. Phillip Burton, also of San Francisco, is a brother of the Assemblyman. Caylor did not elaborate on his charge.

McCarthy disputed Caylor's warning against electing a second Burton to Congress, saying far more important were their qualifications and the issues. McCarthy recalled that both his father and uncle served in the state Legislature at the same time, but voted independently of one another.

Caylor termed himself "the business candidate," citing his background as editor of a business magazine, in foreign trade and with business organizations.

Miss Wall called for shifting all welfare systems from the state to the federal government and providing federal guarantees to back pensions for all working persons.

She said that crime is the leading issue in the campaign, while McCarthy and Caylor said the economy is. McCarthy said the government has got to stop "spending more than it takes in." Caylor added controlling inflation was the key to virtually all other problems.

Asked if they wanted President Nixon's help in getting elected, only Miss Wall said she would welcome such assistance. Caylor said the district election was "not a referendum" on the President, and that impeachment was "not a district issue."

Caylor, the only one of the three so far to file also in the special election to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of William S. Mailliard, pointed out that the winner of the special will be seated by July, thus get the jump in seniority over all others elected to take seats next January.

NEW ENERGY BOSS — John C. Sawhill, who will succeed William E. Simon as federal energy director, outlines his plans to reporters. He said yesterday in Washington he has promised President Nixon a plan by Nov. 1 to make the nation self-sufficient in energy. (UPI Telephoto)

Sawhill Will Concentrate On Energy Conservation

WASHINGTON (AP) — John C. Sawhill, designated yesterday to head the Federal Energy Office, says the major thrust of his agency over the next 12 to 18 months will be toward energy conservation.

Sawhill promised when his appointment was announced to send the President a plan by Nov. 1, to make the nation self-sufficient in energy.

But in an interview before the announcement Sawhill said it would take several years at least to achieve any substantial increases in U.S. domestic oil and gas production.

In the meantime, he said, the nation's imports of petroleum will continue to increase — making it even more vulnerable to sudden interruptions of supply, such as the recent Arab oil embargo.

During the next few years, the only way to reduce the imports and the threat is to reduce U.S. petroleum demand, he said.

"My approach would be to pursue very vigorous conservation."

Sawhill's attitude should be welcome to the administration's top environmental advisers, Environmental Protection Administrator Russell E. Train and Chairman Russell W. Peterson of the Council on Environmental Quality.

Train charged Monday that energy conservation was mostly just talk so far and said he saw no great push in that direction by the Federal Energy Office, which has authority over energy conservation programs.

Peterson is urging a national goal of reducing the growth rate of energy consumption from its recent 4 or 5 per cent a year to 1.8 per cent.

Sawhill talks in terms of a 3 per cent energy growth rate.

But rather than setting an arbitrary target Sawhill says "we've got to put in front of the American people some of the difficult choices we have to make . . ."

Burton May Soon Leave Hospital

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Richard Burton is reported doing well and should be out of a hospital "in a week or 10 days," a spokesman for the actor said.

Burton is being treated for influenza and tracheo-bronchitis at St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica.

Go Slow Use Of Oil Urged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Consumers can expect a 6 per cent shortage during the next three months if they fail to restrain their use of oil, according to the regional administrator of the Federal Energy Office.

"The end of the (Arab oil) embargo brings no guarantee of an elimination of petroleum shortages," William Arntz said Tuesday. "If higher import levels are to resume, an increase in Arab production is necessary."

An unconstrained petroleum consumption, Arntz said, would bring shortages of 6, 3 and 4 per cent during the next three quarters of 1974.

Jackson For China In Arms Discussion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — China should be included in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, says Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash..

Jackson yesterday released a small volume of Chinese commentary on nuclear arms and said it showed the Peking government is highly suspicious "of the arms control motives of the Soviet Union and the United States."

Wines of the Month - APRIL

California white : SONOMA VINEYARDS FRENCH COLOMBARD

California Red PEDRONCELLI 1972 GAMAY BEAUIOLAIS

We also have a sizeable supply of CRESTA BLANCA'S Very fine burgundy, recently accorded an " Outstanding" ranking in Robert Finnegan's Private Guide to Wines. THREE OF CALIFORNIA'S NEWEST & MOST EXCITING WHITE WINES:
1972 LYNCREST VINEYARDS JOHANNISBERG RIESLING - STELTZNER VINEYARD SPATLESE.
Pale yellow, with a hugh, statuesque Riesling nose showing pronounced botrytis. Beautifully rendered flavors, medium body, and quite dry - elegant and extremely complex - this is an unforgettably beautiful wine. $8.00 the bottle

1972 CHATEAU MONTELENA JOHANNISBERG RIESLING - NAPA & ALEXANDER VALLEYS - AUSLESE.
Medium yellow, with luscious, room-filling Riesling perfume, and again, substantial botrytis. Luscious melony flavors, reminiscent of some very fine 1971 Mosel Auslese wines. Tasted blind, may winelovers will swear it's from Germany's finest vineyards $5.50 the bottle

1972 GRAND CRU VINEYARDS ZINFANDEL BLANC DE NOIR A light coppery color, as unusual as the wine; big peach-like fragrance, luscious fruity flavors, very fine balance, and an inviting finish: it will be fascinating to watch this wine develop in the bottle $6.00 the bottle

We have recently received part of our allotment of FETZER VINEYARD'S three new 1972 Zinfandels, each named for the vineyard where it was grown. All are, typically, outstanding. Please ask for them.

Larkspur Trustees Will Interview Four

Four persons, two from within the Larkspur School District and two from outside, will be interviewed to replace Robert W. Johnson as principal of San Clemente School in Corte Madera.

District trustees last night set a special meeting May 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the district office to interview the four.

Seeking the principalship are: Alfred F. Kerr, Larkspur-Corte Madera School vice principal; Gene Ng, seventh-eighth grade teacher at Henry C. Hall School; Sidney Smith, Loma Alta School principal; and James Heidinger, Miller Creek School vice principal. They were selected from a field of 12 applicants.

Johnson decided earlier this year to return to teaching duties within the district, according to Gilbert Slusher, assistant superintendent. He said Johnson's new assignment will not be determined until his replacement is named.

Johnson has served as principal at San Clemente since it was built in 1961. Before that he was a teacher at Neil Cummins School, also in Corte Madera.

Larkspur School District Board Also:

TESTING — Gave permission to the Corte Madera Lions Club to conduct eye tests at two district schools. Dr. Richard Neumaier of the University of California, Berkeley, will conduct the tests for fourth, fifth and sixth graders on May 7 and 9 at San Clemente School and May 14 and 16 at Neil Cummins School.

SUMMER — Gave permission to the Corte Madera Recreation Department to use district schools in the department's summer recreation program.

BUDGET — Reviewed a proposed $2,288,446 preliminary 1974-75 budget without making any changes.

BIDS — Asked for bids on painting San Clemente School, renovating the audio visual curtains at Neil Cummins School and constructing a play yard for primary grade students at Henry C. Hall School.

TEACHERS — Received a request from the Larkspur Teachers Association for an 11 per cent across-the-board salary raise for next year. Slusher said the cost of such a raise has not been determined. Salary negotiations are to begin April 29.

ELECTION — Gave permission to the Marin County clerk to use San Clemente, Neil Cummins and Henry C. Hall schools as polling places in the June 4 primary election.

EMPLOYEES — Accepted the resignation of Larkspur-Corte Madera School teacher aide Lois Newton and Neil Cummins School custodian Michael Field. Bernard Zanoni was hired to replace Field at a monthly salary of $592.

Signups To Close For Kindergarten

Tomorrow will be the last day for parents in the Kentfield School District to make appointments to register their children for kindergarten classes next year.

Supt. Eugene C. Peters said parents of children who will be 5 years old by Dec. 2 should call the district office and schedule an interview between parents and teachers and vision and hearing testing of the student. Interviews and testing will be held May 6 through 10 at Greenbrae School.

Two Yacht Harbors To Expand

The owners of two yacht harbors in Sausalito will be allowed to proceed with expansion plans under the current moratorium on waterfront development, planning commissioners decided last night.

The projects would generate less than 35 daily auto trips per acre, which is the limit under the current freeze on waterfront building, according to planning director Herb Case.

Plans by Herb Madden, owner of the Sauslaito Yacht Harbor, and Ned Martin, owner of the adjacent Pelican Harbor, call for the addition of 302 new boat slips.

Madden's proposal for 200 slips would generate an average of 30 daily auto trips per acre and Martin's plan for 102 slips would generate an average of 23 daily trips per acre, Case said.

A joint environmental impact report for the projects currently is being prepared.

Commissioners also hammered out a memo to the county board of supervisors regarding the redevelopment project proposed for Richardson Bay north of Sausalito.

They are asking that any plans or proposals for redevelopment of the area be submitted to the commission and city council for comment before being considered by supervisors.

They also are recommending that resort and commercial development proposals that might cater to tourists be reevaluated and that priority be given to a regional park, plus facilities for boating, fishing and other forms of recreation. Commissioners support the development of marine-oriented enterprises, such as houseboat harbors and boat building and repair yards.

$8.6 Million Is Spent For Public Relations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The General Accounting Office has reported that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration spent $8.6 million in fiscal 1973 for public relations.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., had asked for the figures. The fiscal 1973 figure was below the $10.2 million spent in the peak year of 1970 when the manned lunar landing was made and public interest in the space program reached its highest level.

Among the space program's public relations activities were 684 appearances by astronauts before an estimated audiences of 700,000 and the flying of distinguished visitors to launch sights.

Permission Given

Strawberry veterinarian Ronald Scheuring received permission of Marin County supervisors Tuesday to build his pet hospital next to the dental office of John E. Jansheski. A headline on a story in yesterday's Independent-Journal gave the opposite impression, although the story contained the correct information.

Trial Date For I-J Damage Suit Is Set

The Independent-Journal's $12 million damage suit against six labor organizations and others in connection with a typographer's strike in 1970 will go to trial Dec. 2 in Marin Superior Court, a judge ruled yesterday.

But Judge Henry J. Broderick took under submission a defense request that the trial be moved to another county on the grounds a fair hearing cannot be had in Marin. If he grants the change of venue, the county that gets the four-year-old case will set its own trial date.

The Independent-Journal was struck on Jan. 7, 1970, by San Francisco Typographical Union 21. The dispute lasted until September, 1971, when printers voted not to associate themselves with the union.

In late 1972 the I-J added a damage section to an older suit against the labor groups and individuals. The original action sought, and got, a court order limiting picketing and forbidding violence.

Named as defendant, besides the local, are the International Typographical Union, the Marin County and San Francisco labor councils, the joint Teamsters Council and 28 individuals — union leaders and persons accused of committing strike-related violence.

Defense attorneys argued yesterday that publicity which surrounded the strike would prejudice any jury chosen to decide the case.

Robert D. Carrow, representing two labor leaders named in the suit, told Broderick: "Publicity has permeated the whole climate of this community and it will be impossible to get a fair trial here."

But Richard V. Bettini, representing the I-J, countered that the strike has been "essentially a dead issue" since July 1971. "Jurors simply do not remember these kinds of things. The matter is stale."

Though issuing no immediate ruling, Broderick appeared to agree with Bettini. "You would be amazed how something that occupies you gentlemen (attorneys) so completely doesn't mean much to the jury," he said.

Broderick did not say when he would rule on the venue motion.

The Novato Youth Commission will sponsor a youth art fair at Pioneer Memorial Park, Novato, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. June 1, recreation supervisor Larry Dito announced today.

Entries with a $2.50 entry fee must be filed with the Novato Youth Commission, in care of Larry Dito, P.O. Box 578, Novato, by May 10.

Grenade Hurts 15

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A grenade exploded in a crowded residential neighborhood on the southwest side of Phnom Penh today, injuring 15 civilians, reporters said.

Funds Sent To Hearsts To Go Back

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — About $80,000 sent to Randolph A. Hearst to help ransom his daughter, Patricia, from kidnapers will be returned, it was announced today.

Wells R. Smith, general manager of the San Francisco Examiner, of which Hearst is president and editor, said the contributions that can be identified will be sent back to the donors. Those made anonymously will go to charity.

The money was sent to Hearst to help him set up the People in Need program to distribute free food as demanded by Patricia's Symbionese Liberation Army kidnapers.

Smith said the money came to Hearst in a flood of mail averaging 600-700 letters a day after the abduction Feb. 4.

Donations varied from three cents to $2,000, he said.

Lecture On Body

Billie Hobart, author and teacher of communications at College of Marin, will lecture on the limits of the body — the process of "living life in a finite vessel" — tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Duncan Hall, Ross and Kensington streets, San Anselmo.

Marin City Committee Expanded During Row

Amid a shouting match in the audience, Marin County Housing Authority Directors bowed last night to a Marin City faction's demands to expand the liaison committee that is working with the authority and the contractor on remodeling the high-rise apartments.

Harold A Strouss, chairman of the authority board, reported that members voted 3-2 to expand the committee from seven to 15 members, as demanded by Nesbit Crutchfield of the Marin City Council, which represents public housing tenants, Thelma McKinney and others in the audience who raised the issue although it wasn't on the meeting agenda.

The decision was tentative, Strouss said, because there is a question whether the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development — which is financing the remodeling — will approve adding to the committee members who don't live in public housing. The authority's attorney also will be asked whether four votes are necessary — the board has seven members — to take the action.

At one point the debate became so heated that Wallace K. Shepherd, authority executive director, summoned a San Rafael police officer to stand in the meeting room. No arrests were made.

The row arose because some Marin City residents have claimed Shepherd hand-picked the seven committee members. Strouss reported he and board member Robert E. Ecklund Jr. voted against increasing the committee size until they receive a report on the issue from the committee itself. Board members Arthur Miller Jr. and Philip S. Erlich Jr. were absent.

Other business on the agenda was routine, Strouss said.

Reed School Budget Set At $3 Million For Year

A preliminary 1974-75 budget of $3,094,584, up $89,414 from this year's estimated spending, has been proposed for the Reed School District by Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello.

The 1974-75 tax rate has not yet been estimated, Giovanniello noted. This year's rate was $3.677 per $100 assessed valuation.

Giovanniello said the size of the budget will require the district to skim $104,122 from its reserves of $381,666 in order to meet expenses.

The budget includes annual salary scale step increases averaging 3 per cent per year for teachers and 5 per cent for other employees. These increases for 1974-75 would total $62,414.

But it does not include cost-of-living raises which might be given as a result of ongoing wage negotiations with teachers. District teachers have asked for an average of 15 per cent in raises, which would cost the district $238,000 annually. According to business manager Charles L. Condrotte, district negotiators have not revealed what they are offering to teachers. (Clerical, business and maintenance employees have not made their wage request yet for 1974-75.)

If teachers get what they are asking for, it would almost completely wipe out the district's reserves, leaving no contingency fund to fall back on for next year.

Condrotte said much of the problem stems from the fact that the district expects average daily attendance to drop to 1,849 next year, compared to 1,884 for this year, resulting in a drop in state aid.

State law also limits school districts to spending no more per pupil than was spent last year, plus a percentage for inflation, and allows a property tax rate no higher than necessary to produce that amount of revenue.

Condrotte noted that the district expects next year to get $1,384,950 out of secured property taxes; $33,400 from unsecured property taxes; $30,000 from prior year's taxes, and $710,000 from areawide taxes. The rest of its expenses will be met with state aid, federal funds and the amount from reserves previously stated.

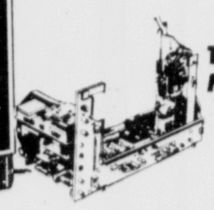

Budget totals by department, with this year's figures in parentheses:

Teachers' and administrators' salaries, $1,621,131 ($1,587,932); clerical and business personnel salaries, $343,434 ($336,235); employee benefits, $246,617 ($234,416); books, supplies and equipment replacement, $102,459 ($109,816); contracted services and operating expenses, $265,550 ($219,170); capital improvements, $24,705 ($54,153; debt service and outgoing tuition, $490,213 ($462,948).

The district board is also scheduled to meet today at 7:30 p.m. at Reedland Woods School to discuss the school's facilities, programs and future.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, clean air.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Nixon, Rockefeller Confer 90 Minutes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon met with former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller for 90 minutes yesterday, the White House announced.

Rockefeller discussed with Nixon the progress of his work on the National Commission on Critical Choices.

Stiff Animal Control Ordinances Adopted

With no citizen present to plead the case of free-roaming pets, two strict animal control ordinances were unanimously adopted last night by the Larkspur City Council.

Councilmen summarily approved provisions limiting the kind, and number, of acceptable pets, and also approved a leash law to tether some of the approved animals.

Major sections of the ordinances: require dogs to be on a leash; limit households to three dogs, and small apartments less than 1,000 square feet to two dogs or cats; outlaw keeping "potentially dangerous animals" such as roosters, ducks, rabbits or sheep without a permit from the city manager.

A second ordinance allows residents to keep a maximum of two horses on the first acre of rural residential property, and one horse per acre on entirely rural land.

The council also adopted an animal nuisance abatement provision, allowing citizens to complain about noisy pets to city officials. The city is authorized to impound a pet two days after a complaint, and dispose of it 13 days after that, if the owner does not comply with city noise regulations.

"It's nice we don't have a horde of kids here tonight saying, 'You're bad people,' " for leashing pets, Mayor Joan L. Sestak said with a laugh as the meeting got under way.

Councilman William G. Fleckles questioned the limitations on the number of pets, particularly the small-apartment limitation. He said he was not sure a family of four, living in a small apartment, would not like to have more than the alloted number of pets. "It's a fine rule if you're talking about one individual in an apartment," he observed. "I'm sure only the cat-woman of San Rafael would want more than one or two animals for oneself — but what about for a family?" he asked. No other member spoke in favor of eliminating the apartment restriction, and Fleckles voted with the others to accept it.

City Mgr. Harlan Barry raised the problem of enforcing the new law. The council agreed that he and councilman Robert H. Lee will work with Marin veterinarian John E. Lessin and a humane society representative in a committee to establish how strict enforcement standards should be.

Councilman Alfred J. Malvino quickly said he expects the law to be rigorously enforced. "There's no sense having a leash law if loose animals aren't picked up and put away," he argued.

But until an enforcement policy is established by the new committee, Larkspur's new leash law will remain toothless.

The Larkspur City Council Also:

PLANNING — Interviewed in closed session planning commission candidates Erik Rettig, Ron Gillis and Ed Kestell. Eight other candidates — William Dahlgren, John Moran, James Pride, William Crosby, Roger Roberts, Evelyn O'Sullivan, Kathleen Ohlson and Paul Thompson — will be interviewed in another closed session tonight at 7 p.m., and Mayor Joan L. Sestak says the names of the three selected for appointment will be announced tomorrow morning.

FEES — Directed City Mgr. Harlan Barry to begin work on ordinances establishing or increasing fees charged by the city for permits, reviews, or amendments.

PARKS — Introduced a resolution establishing hours of use (7 a.m. - 10 p.m.) for the city's parks, and changing park animal regulations to conform to the newly-established animal control ordinances.

CLOSED SESSION — Moved behind closed doors to hear report from City Atty. Joseph A. Forest concerning litigation against the city, and to instruct negotiator on salaries with town employees.

APPEALS — Was told by Forest that a recent state Supreme Court decision giving the courts wider discretion in reviewing decisions of local agencies such as city councils may bring to Larkspur and other agencies a big rise in court suits by persons hoping to overturn adverse actions on matters such as zoning.

ADJOURNED — To closed session tonight at 7 p.m., where councilmen will interview the remaining eight planning commission applicants, and choose the three appointees.

A Daughter Of McGovern Seeks Maiden Name

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Susan Rowen, daughter of Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., yesterday filed a petition in Dane County Circuit Court asking that her maiden name be legally restored.

Mrs. Rowen, 28, wife of James Rowen, an assistant to Mayor Paul Soglin, said "the name of Susan Jean McGovern, will, under the circumstances, be an advantage and convenience both socially and in business."

She did not detail the circumstances.

A second petition filed by Mrs. Rowen and her husband asked that the name of their son, Matthew David Rowen, be legally changed to Matthew David McGovern-Rowen.

THE FIRST Wheels For Marin cars began to roll in 1969 with volunteer drivers from Pacific Telephone Co. in San Rafael volunteering to drive elderly or persons having doctor's appointments. Here volunteer Gail Wallace chauffeurs young Mike Borruso to an appointment. The Volunteer Bureau was instrumental in setting up the program and scheduling drivers. Last year one man drove 12,000 volunteer miles at his own expense.

VOLUNTEER BUREAU OF MARIN

Climate Of Change In 10 Years

By BARBARA HOSMER

Celebrating 10 years of service at its annual meeting at Peacock Gap Country Club today, the Volunteer Bureau of Marin sees itself operating in a climate of sweeping change in the role of the volunteer.

When the bureau opened its doors in April 1964, in two tiny rooms of San Rafael's Scout Hall, change was already under way in the volunteer world, recalls Marion Kelley, the bureau's executive director.

"People had been leaving it up to the professionals in education, health and welfare. After World War II people became more materialistic and sought isolation in the suburbs. We became mobile, estranged from our backgrounds. The center of 'neighborhood' was gone and the old days when the community took care of its own problems," she explained.

Then with the population explosion, there was neither enough money nor professionals to meet all the needs, she said.

"People began saying, 'Let's use the volunteer,'" but the professionals felt it was they who had the training to care for those with needs. The volunteer did not, she said.

"VOLUNTEERISM HAD pretty much been a woman's and youth's job, and it had been non-controversial until then," she explained. "We came in on the edge of the controversy over school volunteers. The changes in the Volunteer Bureau have come as a result of community changes, changes in the whole country's view of volunteers. We have redefined volunteerism."

At the same time in the early 1960s there was a national movement for people to become more involved with their local community, Mrs. Kelley said.

Founded under the chairmanship of Mrs. Philip A. Crane Jr. of Kentfield and sponsored by the Junior League of San Francisco for three years, the bureau began by recruiting, interviewing and placing volunteers — mainly women and teenagers — in some 74 agencies the first year. Of 370 potential volunteers interviewed, 292 were placed as hostesses, typists, hospital aides, mailing crews, ushers, teacher aides, receptionists, drivers and workers with the handicapped.

Mrs. Kelley directed the effort, assisted by a staff of volunteers, one of whom, Margery Sell, was soon employed as administrative assistant. Both have taken the volunteer bureau, over the years, into nearly every area of the Marin community, with the encouragement of a board open to experimentation.

They believe that one of the basic and most productive

Free Clinic Of Marin is Selected Agency Of Year

Two agencies and three individuals were honored today for outstanding volunteer accomplishments the past year at the 10th annual awards luncheon of the Volunteer Bureau of Marin.

The Free Clinic of Marin was named agency of the year, and an honorary award was won by the Marin Life Underwriters Association.

Individuals honored were William F. Barry of Greenbrae, who logged 12,000 volunteer miles last year in the Whistle-stop Wheels transportation service for handicapped Marinites; Dyanne Bohner of Novato, who established the Kinship program in the Novato area to help youngsters in need, and Hal McDaniel of Fairfax, who has responded to every "spot" driving assignment to help those in need.

John Mueller, president of the Volunteer Bureau board, said the Free Clinic and its founder, Rev. Ed Berey, were honored for organizing volunteer medical staff and serving medical needs free for those unable to receive treatment through conventional programs.

Some 70 doctors, nurses, technicians and secretaries give time to the Free Clinic in Mill Valley and Fairfax. It will also open at the Novato Human Needs Center next week.

The Underwriters Association, through its public service committee works on a Medic Alert project and a prison visitation program with San Quentin inmates, has recruited volunteers for Whistlestop Wheels, and gave initial funding for a Marin County drunken driving school, similar to a traffic school, in cooperation with the National Council on Alcoholism.

New officers of the Volunteer Bureau elected at the meeting at Peacock Gap Country Club are John Mueller, president; Murray Koff, first vice president; Barbara Violich, second vice president; Gloria Hannon, secretary, and Walter Smith, treasurer.

VOLUNTEER BUREAU OF MARIN

Climate Of Change In 10 Years

things the volunteer bureau has been able to do is to bring people together — showing individual volunteers the array of community programs open to them, and working toward coordination and cooperation among agencies and organizations in Marin.

"Our function here has been unofficial, helping to coordinate," Mrs. Kelley explained, not to compete with other agencies.

Some of the programs the bureau has helped organize or brought together include:

THE INTER-Agency Council, a monthly meeting of a variety of UBAC agency personnel to share information on what each is doing.

WHEELS FOR Marin, a program of volunteer drivers, coordinated by a staff in the volunteer bureau office, to get elderly and ill persons to doctor's appointments and crucial office visits and to help meet their needs.

THE SWITCHING Yard, tying Marin youth and community programs together, under the direction of Tim Stanton. This program grew from the urge by young people several years ago to help in the community. They said, "Don't give us 'busy work,' give us something meaningful," Mrs. Kelley explained. Now that the schools have taken on the making of the community a classroom, the Volunteer Bureau is working to make that a productive educational experience, and assisting the faculty understand what is in that community, she said. Stanton has been working the past three years with agencies to develop community programs for youth, some of which involves matching high school students with youngsters with special problems, and assisting faculty how to use the community as a lab.

COUNTY DEPARTMENT of Public Social Services Volunteer program, which provides volunteer drivers, tutors for adults with language and literacy problems and children with learning problems, child care, visitors to the ill or elderly, phone pals for invalids, telecare checks on persons living alone, language translators, library outreach, camperships for children and special volunteer training. The program began five years ago and is funded now by county and federal monies.

THE NOVATO Human Needs Center, where Mrs. Kelley and Mrs. Sell each spent one day a week for months training office volunteers.

THE "NEW You" series, an effort with the County Library and Marin Association for Mental Health to bring women together in the communities of Novato, Terra Linda and Tiburon in discussions to learn of community resources and involvement they can choose.

THE COURT Referral program, in which Marin municipal judges assign offenders to volunteer work for set periods of time through the volunteer bureau. This challenging program began suddenly when Judge Robert A. Smallman assigned someone to volunteer work as an alternative to jail or fine, Mrs. Kelley explained.

"We were averaging 10 or 12 a month, mostly drunk driving, traffic, disturbing the peace, drug, petty theft and assault offenders, then the number jumped up. We've restricted it now because we can't handle more and the program isn't funded," Mrs. Kelley said. Each offender is interviewed by the bureau and evaluated for suitable placement.

"Some volunteers come with a drug conviction. We have to be very selective on where we send them. They can't work with kids. So we have to know the community, the people in agencies, we have to know their tolerance," Mrs. Sell explained.

"Sometimes you have to find several jobs for one person. It takes incredible time to find out the person's needs, place him and follow up," Mrs. Kelley added. The program began in Oakland where a judge was also on the volunteer bureau board, she said.

Training volunteers to place other volunteers has been a strong part of the bureau's program as well. One month last year 109 volunteers were interviewed, many by trained volunteers.

EARLY LAST November, the volunteer bureau picked up and moved from San Rafael to quarters in the former Isabel Cook School in San Anselmo, where it can stretch out a bit, housing the Wheels and Switching Yard programs as well as the bureau staff, committee meetings, training sessions and interview offices. Seven telephone lines are kept busy throughout the week, and bureau staff often dash in and out, serving as "positive" eyes and ears throughout the Marin community, putting people and useful information together.

They are seeing increasingly well-educated, often highly skilled volunteers, many new to the community and eager to plug into it. They are seeing many more men volunteering, and persons of all ages. They have seen volunteer programs begin in a variety of new places. And they also place the person who likes to type, likes people and has three hours a week to give.

The bureau has developed an auxiliary to augment its United Bay Area Crusade budget with such fund-raisers as the Designers' Showcase.

It is hopeful about opening a new program in West Marin to determine needs and develop a volunteer resource center with offices in Stinson Beach and Point Reyes Station, Mrs. Kelley said.

And the staff gets very excited over the idea of developing leadership training for volunteers.

GENERATION RAP

Girlfriend Keeps Him Jumpy By Never Taking Him Seriously

RAP:

My girlfriend and I are both 18. I love her a lot, but I am unsure of myself, and her teasing doesn't help.

She tells me about the guys at work who make passes at her. I ask her if she's happy with me and she says, "Oh . . . maybe . . ." She'll never give a straight answer. When I ask, "Do you love me?" she says, "What for?" And often she starts flirting with somebody else.

She never lets me know how she really feels, and when I call her on it and say I might break up, what with all this uncertainness, she says, "Go ahead," knowing I won't.

Maybe I ask stupid questions, but if she'd give me some assurance I wouldn't have to. Since we've been going together for over 14 months, isn't it time she got honest with me? — COULD I BE THE PROBLEM?

CIBTP:

You could be part of the problem. Hasn't anyone ever told you that nice guys get walked on? (But don't you dare change — sincere, open, expressive people are the best kind.)

Since your g.f. knows she won't lose you, no matter how she teases, it's easy for her to play games that make her feel superior. Maybe if you really did take off for awhile, she'd realize what she's lost. If not, well, I'm sure there's a girl somewhere who will treat you better. — SUE

DEAR CIBTP:

Your friend sounds like a throwback to my generation, when girls were taught that if you keep a man guessing, you'll keep him — period!

Thank goodness that dishonest approach went out of style!

Maybe she can't express her real feelings for fear of being hurt — or maybe she doesn't have any real feelings yet. An all-out flirt is either insecure or shallow, and you'd better find out which before you go much further in this romance. — HELEN

DEAR RAP:

Ron, who lived next door was like an older brother to me. I came to him with my problems, and when I was 14, he took me to an expensive restaurant as a "practice date," so I wouldn't be nervous on my first real date.

After I started going out, he'd advise me on the guys I should choose. We were real close friends, and I didn't know how much I'd miss him until he went off to college. (He's 19.)

Now I'm lost. I keep my problems inside because there's no Ron to help me with them, and I pretend I'm having a ball, when I'm really ready to cry. How can I stop feeling so dependent on someone who is gone? — "16"

DEAR 16:

A fellow who is away at college isn't really "gone" from your life. Look forward to summer vacation, and write him a letter or two in between.

And face it: he's not the "big brother" you depend on anymore — he's the man you'd like most to date. You've got the inside track, because you're best-friends already. Now, all you need do is show Ron you've grown up. That shouldn't be hard. — HELEN

DEAR 16:

Meanwhile, don't just sit there and mourn for Ron. Keep up your school friendships and outside interests — and if you run into a problem, write him a letter. Even if you don't run into a problem, write him a letter; and look forward to June! — SUE

Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel —or both, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902., if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.

RAYMOND AND Ellie Jacobs display samples of the "minus heels" footwear they sell in their earth shoes store in New York. Made for posture and body and foot health, the shoes were developed by a Danish yoga student and are imported by the Jacobs to the United States.

Earth Shoe's An Ugly Duckling For Looks, A Dream For Comfort

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Remember the pleasure of walking barefoot in the backyard or at the beach?

Now, the inventiveness of a former yoga teacher in Denmark and an enterprising husband-wife team in New York promises similar comfort on concrete, or wherever else your feet take you.

They're responsible for a footwear phenomenon called the "Earth Shoe," an ugly duckly to look at, with its thick rubber sole and snub-nosed toe, but a beautiful swan, its wearers declare, for what it does for posture, body and foot health.

Its basic principle: the heel riding lower than the rest of the sole, thereby giving us the stance that nature intended. Walk on a beach, dig in your bare heels, look at the footprint, and you get the idea.

RAYMOND AND Eleanor (Ellie) Jacobs, the New York couple, have a background in the fine arts, which is about as far away from the shoe business as you can get.

She's a former advertising copywriter, still is an abstract artist. He is a photographer, an art director free lancing with advertising agencies, and a film producer-director.

Their new venture came about when the whole family, they have two girls, Laura, now 12, and Susan, 14, decided to spend a summer in Europe. Because of their art interests, much of that time was spent visiting museums. Mrs. Jacobs recalled that her back, a trouble spot since her first pregnancy, was making her so miserable the vacation was spent more in pain than pleasure.

And then in Copenhagen, looking for some comfortable footwear, she and her husband dropped into a tiny store on a side street. That was the beginning of their association with Anna Kalso, who was designing the "minus heel" shoe the Jacobs were seeing all over Copenhagen.

MRS. KALSO, a life-long student of yoga, had developed the shoe as a tool for proper breathing, an integral part of yoga. Her experiments had started during a visit to a monastery in Santos, Brazil. She began to relate the elegant carriage of the Indians with their footprints in the soil and noted that when one walked on a natural terrain, the body weight sank low into the heels. The body, head to toe, became one straight line, giving the same skeletal stability that is attained in the Lotus or Buddha position of yoga.

Mrs. Kalso's first non-heel shoe was a sandal developed with a Portuguese shoemaker. Then over a 10-year period she refined it, testing the new models herself with extensive hikes.

Jacobs recalled that when they met Mrs. Kalso, there was instant rapport.

His business instinct, he said, was to determine "if the shoes can be brought to America."

The rest is history. The Jacobs' opened their first shop April 1, 1970, and named it the "Earth Shoe," because opening day was the first national observance of Earth Day.

Now, the Jacobs' own six stores, more opening shortly, and have 40 to 50 others independently operated. Mrs. Kalso, now 69, comes frequently to the United States to supervise styling and production.

ART REVIEW

Terra Linda Art Association Show Has 'Growth' For Theme

By ADA GARFINKEL

Most of the artists related to nature-organically, ritualistically, or as psychological surrogates. A few elected to convey growth in visual modes of social awareness and timely phenomena. For some, the essence of their personal growth emerged in their sensitivity as artists.

Eve Von Neumann's "Tropicana," a softly brushed spray of gladiolus with a play of shimmering sunlight creating a diffusion of color has the ethereal effect of a stained glass window. And a nubile Botticelli-like "Nude" — a tempera painting by Sergei Smirnoff — with serpentine coils of abstract floral wreaths, suggests a ritualistic paean to spring.

Blanche Small's "Protest," a woodcut which was given the "best-in-show" award, interprets growth as speaking out, with a garishly contorted, wide-open mouth in brilliant red on a red and white background.

On a lighter note, M. Shaughnessy's "Swoosh" lowers the age for streakers to a 9-year-old losing his shoe in his hurry to get away.

Lois Haddad's "How Green Is My Valley?" — a rolling landscape moving upwardly to a high horizon line — suggests both movement and growth with clusters of mushroom-shaped trees in yellow-greens and pointillist dots of color as flowers.

Rain as an instigator of growth is incorporated in Pat Callegari's "Imagery of Spring" with staccato shafts of blue, brown, and white crisscross lines. And a crisp awakening to life is implicit in Rae Taub's maxi-sized "Poppy," while Donna McGinnis' "Trees No. 1" bears the cold, scrubbed look and tone of emotional turbulence.

Audrey Pill's swooshy landscape in pastel jewel hues, on the other hand, has the rollicking buoyancy of palpable, subsurface germination.

"Patterns No. III" by Mary Ellen Wehrli, "Orchard in Bloom" by Tex McGowan, and "Spring Blooms" by Donna McGinnis received merit awards.

"Patterns of Growth" will continue through April 26. Gallery hours are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Terra Linda Art Association gallery is located at 4172 Redwood Highway.

'No Probation' Initiative Will Be Circulated Soon

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger announced yesterday that petitions for a "no probation" initiative would begin being circulated by off-duty policemen and others within a few days.

Younger, a Republican seeking re-election this year, is one of three co-chairmen of the initiative drive.

The measure, if put on the ballot and approved by voters, would prevent judges from granting probation to convicted heroin or cocaine peddlers, persons who use a firearm in commission of a felony and "professional" burglars, those convicted three times.

About 325,000 signatures are needed by June 27 to qualify the initiative for a spot on the November general election ballot.

Younger was joined by other law enforcement officials at a Capitol news conference to publicize the effort.

FAMILY

"Alice In Wonderland" — Reissue of Lewis Carroll's sensitive fantsy touched with the magic Walt Disney wand. Its charm is not a whit diminished by the passage of time.

"Chariots of the Gods" — Beautiful photographic exploration of Von Daniken's theory — that extraterrestrial beings have visited earth. Documentary.

"Son of Flubber" — Sequel to "Absent-Minded Professor." In striving to perfect a rain-making device a professor produecs a crop of mammoth vegetables.

"Super Dad" — Innocuous spoof of the generation gap. A father uses his influence to help daughter meet Mr. Right and get into troubles. Filming done in Sausalito and San Francisco.

"Twelve Chairs" — A hilarious examination of greed done in slapstick style. Jewels sewn into one of 12 chairs creates havoc among those trying to trace them.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Conversation" — A professional evesdropper who guards his own privacy against everyone finds himself a pawn when he attempts to prevent murder.

"Day of the Dolphin" — Behavioral scientist learns to communicate with a dolphin. Government agents take over the trained animal and try to use it to assassinate the president. Some strong language.

"The Great Gatsby" — Love story that is curiously phlegmatic and uninvolving about life and people back in the jazz, prohibition and big racketeer age. (Movie Report)

"Macintosh Man" — Sophisticated, complicated spy tale involving a jewel thief and a British traitor. Unorthodox methods employed makes for exciting viewing. Violence.

"Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams" — A well-acted, serious drama about a woman forced to cope with her mother's death, her son's homosexuality and a decaying relationship with her husband.

BORDERLINE

(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Billy Jack" — An unusually clear-eyed drama about prejudice and hypocrisy at an Indian reservation school. Nudity, graphic rape scenes, bloody murders and other violence.

"Shamus" — Violent detective tale with stolen diamonds, export companies and army surplus and code books liberally mixed with Burt Reynolds' sex life. Cursing.

"Sting" — Comedy-drama set in the 1930s in Chicago is about fleecers, fleecing fleecers. Fast moving, filled with surprises, well acted but violent.

"Thief Who Came to Dinner" — A disillusioned man turns jewel thief, a likeable rogue. Even the insurance investigator is conned into letting him escape. Another dose of crime does apy tale, the last thing we need.

"The Way We Were" — Stormy love story of a left-wing Jewish girl and a college man strickly social register over a 20 year period. Very slow moving.

ADULTS ONLY

"Blazing Saddles" — Wild western spoof, undisciplined, vulgar, childish but hilarious. Nothing is sacred. Tone is bawdy.

"Exorcist" — Film offers no valid information about demonology. It sinks to a new low of sensationalism and creates appalling shock effects. Details are nauseating.

"Last Detail" — Two career sailors escorting a young man to prison provide him with a treat of a visit to a brothel, pot party and drinking spree. Film starts grimly, becomes wild comedy with a poignant ending. Nudity, raw language, bawdiness.

"Papillion" — A long, grim movie based on bestseller book on the evils of the old French penal system. Very brutal, nudity, cursing and one homosexual scene. Well acted.

Bats Making Library Home

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Bats have taken up residence in the new undergraduate library at Stanford University because of the energy crisis.

School officials said yesterday that fifth-floor windows were opened so the air conditioning system could be turned off to save electricity. The bats then made their entry.

Double Race

OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI) — The Washington House has approved a proposal that would allow Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to run for president or vice president and seek reelection to his Senate seat at the same time.

Lopping Off Those Unnecessary Agencies

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., has proposed abolishing 16 federal agencies. They are useless and wasteful, he contends.

A case might be made for keeping some of the 16 that Proxmire wants to abolish; but we have no doubt he could find several times 16 more that could be discarded without harm to the government and with benefit to us taxpayers.

IN CALLING for the not-really-radical surgery of lopping off 16 of the multiple shoots of federal bureaucracy, Senator Proxmire said:

"Virtually every bill passed by the Congress and signed by the president establishes some new agency, commission, board or advisory council. Once started, they take on a life of their own. They are never abolished."

If any truer words than those have been spoken lately, we've missed them.

Among the agencies the Wisconsin senator wants to axe is one that is almost sacrosanct: the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The ICC was set up to put an end to gouging and rebates by public carriers engaged in interstate transportation — which at that time were nearly all railroads. It did the job.

However, claims Proxmire, it has long outlived its usefulness. He charges that ICC has established monopolies and ordered high rates to protect inefficient producers. He proposes letting the transportation industry be competitive.

OTHERS HE WOULD knock off have no discernible reason for continued existence except to provide jobs at taxpayers' expense. Among these is Selective Service. Congress has abolished the draft, but the Selective Service bureaucracy continues in existence, even going through the motions of periodically drawing numbers out of a goldfish bowl. This is a prime example of an agency that, as the senator says, has "taken on a life of its own."

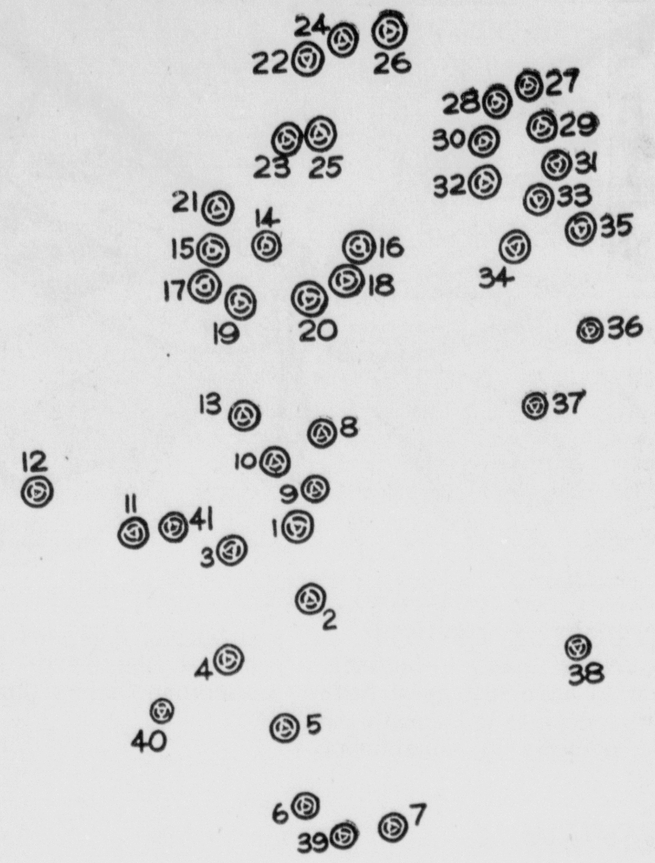

Another is the Civil Defense Administration. Proxmire calls its shelter and evacuation programs "sterile examples of make-work."

Coincidentally, just as the senator called for interring CDA, a new survey of evacuation in case of nuclear attack was disclosed to be under way. But it is being done by the Defense Department — not CDA. This points up another fault with the multitudinous bureaus: Often they duplicate one another.

WE THINK Senator Proxmire has a very good idea. Unfortunately, we don't expect it to get far. That "life of their own" the agencies take on is a very durable life indeed.

But we would recommend Proxmire's approach to others — and not just in the federal government. Every county, district and city board now wrestling with next fiscal year's budget and tax rate might well ask itself regarding each commission, department and agency: Is this one necessary?

Honest answers to that question could save us all a lot of money.

Tenuous U.S.-French Connection Weakened By Nixon In Paris

The relationship between the United States and France has always been mixed and often difficult. It has, in fact, been more difficult at some moments in the past than it is right now, but not by much.

The first bad period in the relationship came immediately after the French Revolution, when the American cabinet was split between the pro-French leaning of Thomas Jefferson and the pro-British of Alexander Hamilton. President Washington managed with difficulty to take up a more or less neutral stance between the French and British factions. Incidentally, those who favored France called themselves Republicans. The pro-British were the Federalists.

A second and worse phase came in the form of the "quasi war" with France of 1798 to 1800. The American Navy went up from 10 to 54 ships which captured during the period of open hostilities a total of 93 armed French vessels. It was the biggest undeclared war of the United States — until Korea and Vietnam.

It is midly interesting in passing that during that undeclared war against France the U.S. Navy operated in cooperation with the British Navy. That alignment was entirely reversed during the War of 1812 when the U.S. went openly to general war against Britain at a moment when doing so helped Napoleon Bonaparte substantially.

THE TWO EARLY bad patches in U.S.-French relations did not, however, wipe out a deep sense of obligation to France for the help which the French (not entirely unselfishly) gave to the U.S. during the American Revolution. The Lafayette cult existed right down through General Pershing's famous "Lafayette, we are here" remark in 1917.

It languished in the aftermath of World War I. Unpaid war debts, the French treatment of Germany, and a general feeling that the French were ungrateful and, indeed, undeserving, tended to sour the relationship. In World War II the quick defeat of France further weakened American respect for France as a world power.

Toward the end of the war General de Gaulle managed to rekindle some of the French mystique in American hearts and a happy renewal of the old relationship seemed likely. But de Gaulle himself came back to power in 1958 and used anti-Americanism deliberately as an instrument in rekindling French national self-respect. Ever since then the French connection has been difficult.

THERE CANNOT BE any effective defense of Western Europe without French cooperation. The union of Western Europe has almost no validity without France. And yet France has withheld its full cooperation right through the de Gaulle and Pompidou period.

In fairness to Pompidou, he did mitigate the Gaullist tone of rancor toward the U.S. Had he lived out his full term in office he might have cleared many of the points of the connection. He did work in that direction although cautiously and much too slowly for the cause of a good trans-Atlantic relationship. Now the task remains for his successor, still to be selected.

There remains the fact that France and the U.S. have vital interests in common, yet find it difficult to put them into solid institutional form. There is a deep French jealousy of the power and influence of the U.S. and an incurable contempt for what most French regard as the inferior American culture.

The culture gap leads to most unfortunate results. It never occurred to President Nixon when he was in Paris the other day for the Pompidou memorial service that there was any reason why he shouldn't have talks there with other political figures, or shake hands in the streets. To the French, it was the height of bad manners. From left to right, every French faction was offended, and every Paris newspaper expressed its disapproval in its own way. It will take a while for the French to get over what they regard as an affront. The repair of the French connection has been set back.

ERWIN D. CANHAM: Press Drifts To Left

One of the noteworthy facts of the last decade or two is the leftward drift of major American newspapers. I am not talking about their coverage of the current presidential crisis, although their political orientation has some bearing on that coverage. I am talking about their basic political conviction.

The drift is emphasized by the purchase of the Washington-Star News by Joe Allbritton, a Texas Democrat who happens to have been the largest financial backer of the presidential campaign of Senator Edmund S. Muskie in 1971-72. The Star-News, which is the only surviving Washington afternoon newspaper, was years ago a pillar of conservatism, and it remained until the present definitely to the right of its Washington morning rival, the Post.

Time was when the Post itself was staunchly conservative, but its leftward drift began even in the 1940s and continued markedly in recent years. The New York Times, traditionally an independent paper with Democratic leanings, was once relatively conservative. Now it is emphatically liberal. The Los Angeles Times, also for many decades an ardently conservative organ, has become independent to the point of relative liberalism.

THE NEWSPAPER EDITORIAL voices which once proclaimed conservatism so vigorously that President Franklin D. Roosevelt called it the "one-party-press" and presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson repeated the sentiments in anguish in the 1950s, now are few and far between. The Chicago Tribune is not nearly so conservative as in the days of its spectacular publisher, Col. Robert McCormick. The Wall Street Journal is conservative but with frequent touches of independence.

The terms "leftward" or "liberal" and "conservative" are not easy to define. They are relative. Just about everything has moved to the left. The two political parties are not clearly conservative or liberal. Some Republicans are more liberal than some Democrats, and some Democrats more conservative than some Republicans.

But broadly speaking, the coalition going under the name Republican is more heavily conservative-oriented, and vice versa for the Democrats. In general the dividing point turns on the role government should play in social experiment and economic controls.It turns on political activism and intervention, instead of leaving as much as possible to private decision and control.

IT DID NOT MATTER much, in the 1930s when President Roosevelt spoke of the one-party press, because he was talking mainly of the editorial pages. The dynamic news he was creating won the battle of publicity, and of politics, in the headlines on the front pages.

But the new attitudes of major American newspapers go beyond the editorials. The publishers are sympathetic with a form of activist journalism which at its most legitimate involves bold investigation of corruption and unsolved problems in local or national life, but which at its less legitimate permits without identification the mixing of too much editorial opinion into news coverage.

Activist journalism could be just as vigorous on the conservative side as on the liberal. But somehow in recent days the scandals to be uncovered have not been so much those of the underworld or the political bosses or the bungling bureaucracies, but of the erstwhile pillars of the community in business or in government. Freedom to investigate and expose might well not have been so general in the old days as it has been of late. The attitudes of those who own and control newspaper enterprises can make a difference.

IT WOULD BE a mistake to equate conservatism with the views and emotions of today's Nixon loyalists. True conservatism, the true preservation of the institution and the integrity of the presidency, goes far beyond the fate of a single individual.

But the anger of those who now attack the press stems in part from their awareness that many newspapers are today crusading for liberal causes more vigorously than ever before. The drift leftward may be caused by the chance fluctuation of varying ownership, or reaction to the responsibility of monopoly ownership, but it is happening.

Corporation Tax Change Could Work Both Ways

By EARL G. WATERS

Under consideration by the California Senate are two constitutional amendments which would permit drastic changes in tax laws by the legislature.

Present constitutional provisions require a two-thirds vote of both houses to alter taxes levied on banks, insurance companies and corporations.

Assemblyman John F. Dunlap, D-Vallejo, has proposed outright repeal of the provision. Sen. John A. Nejedly, R-Walnut Creek, would offer the voters the option of repealing it or reaffirming it.

Speaker Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood, feels so strongly about eliminating the provision that he made the Dunlap measure a special order of business in securing its passage by the Assembly.

Describing the provisions as "a discriminatory tax protection for banks and corporations he said, "This anachronistic provision not only denies the principles of fairness and equality which should form the basis of a progressive tax system, it stands as the greatest roadblock to real tax reform.

MORETTI, OF COURSE, is campaigning for governor. Like many politicians he finds it convenient to have a whipping boy. But the tenet advanced by proponents that the present provisions make it more difficult to tax these "special interests than the rest of the folks needs examination.

In the first place a two-thirds vote is required for most major tax bills adopted by the legislature. This because they either contain an appropriation, an urgency clause, or affect personal property.

And while it can be argued that eliminating the two-thirds vote requirement on bank and corporation taxes would make increases easier, it can just as well be argued that it would make decreases easier too.

THE RATE of taxation for insurance companies is set in the constitution at 2.35 per cent. But that is on gross receipts. The tax for corporations is set by law at 9 per cent. Banks are required to pay an additional 4 per cent on top of that. These rates apply to net income.

The rates for banks and corporations have not always been that high. In fact, contrary to the proponents contention that raising their taxes is too difficult under the present two-thirds vote requirement, both have been subjected to two increases in the past seven years. The total of both raises amounts to about an 80 per cent tax increase.

But it has worked as a "roadblock to decreases. In the passage of Governor Reagans last income tax refund measure, the corporations, despite the fact they had contributed more to the surplus than individual taxpayers, were left out. Presumably this was because, had they been included, the measure would have required the two-thirds vote.

Behind the drive for elimination of the two-thirds vote is the conviction of the proponents that the present depletion allowances should be eliminated. And while they argue this cannot be done because of the two-thirds vote requirement, others point out that neither can the corporations open exemption loopholes.

And, legislative tax experts warn, as tax rates increase the pressure for exemptions builds.

The 'Uncontrollable' Growth Of Spending On Social Welfare

(By Jonathan Spivak in Wall Street Journal)

WASHINGTON — Despite five years of conservative rhetoric and efforts at retrenchment, the Republicans have succeeded in more than doubling the government's spending on social welfare.

HEW's new $111 billion budget, a dimension undreamed of by Great Society Democrats, will consume more than one-third of all federal revenues and its potential for growth shows no signs of slackening. While Mr. Nixon still rails at the Washington welfare bureaucrats and seeks to end some of their endeavors, his major thrust in the domestic arena is unmistakable — more money for more government social uplift programs.

THE ONLY MAJOR change wrought by the Republicans is that much of his money now goes to individuals, like Social Security beneficiaries, rather than institutions. . .

Aid to institutions, such as medical schools, hospitals and universities, has proved more difficult to curtail than anticipated and aid to individuals has produced an expansion of the bureaucracy. . .

Now, with most cash and in-kind programs, such as food stamps, tied to the cost of living, the government's social welfare outlays will steadily escalate. Great Society survivors should be pleased with this prospect; after all, for years they battled bitterly to gain any increase in federal social spending.

Ironically, however, they regard the expansion of Social Security and other cash payment programs as a threat, not a victory. It forecloses spending for housing, health care and other activities, which they regard as more important. And the federal budget becomes an inflexible and potentially ineffective instrument of social policy.

SEVENTY-THREE PER CENT of all federal outlays are now considered "uncontrollable" and the picture is even bleaker at HEW. All but $8 billion of the department's $111 billion budget is fixed by law and can't be cut or spent for any other purpose.

In his new budget, President Nixon forecasts future federal surpluses mounting to $37 billion in 1979. The claimants are already lining up, but before they get to the Treasury's coffers most of the money will probably have been consumed by the rising costs of existing social programs.

Bunny On Bike Path Provides Easter Treat

It certainly should not go unmentioned the appreciation that several enthusiastic bike riders have for the special Easter treat that greeted us all on Easter Sunday morning while riding along the Tiburon bike path near Blackie's Pasture. Resting comfortably in a tall cluster of untrampled green grass, was a cleverly costumed white bunny with incredibly large pink ears and an unforgettably huge white tail.

As each family approached the resting bunny, the fluffy animal suddenly awoke spreading holiday cheer to both parents' and childrens' delight. The warmth of that personality was something to behold! The bunny's delight in distributing an egg to each child brought wide acceptance and smiles to all who shared in the activities. Yes, this bunny had artistically colored a wide assortment of eggs for the unexpected bikers.

We sincerely thank you for your hospitality. Whoever you were and where ever you may be, may there always be a bunny in your life to bring you an equal amount of happiness as you gave all us bike riders on Easter Sunday. Thank you and hope you will be present next year.

McPhail Tells Reasons For Seeking Election

I want to make the following statements concerning my candidacy as a director for the Marin Municipal Water District No. 1, which includes the following areas: Santa Venetia, Northbridge, Terra Linda, Marinwood, Hamilton Field, Upper Sleepy Hollow, San Geronimo Valley to Samuel Taylor Park, etc.

Why did I go into this race? As a third-generation Marinite who has lived in Marin for 35 years, I feel it is most important to get the water board out of the burning issues of growth versus non-growth.

The logic of some of my opponents, backed by special-interest groups, does not answer the question of how to best govern the water board.

I feel that the water board should concentrate on delivering to the people of Marin County the best possible water supply at the most economical rate, at the same time protecting the environment for the present generation as well as future generations. My goal is to try to cut water rates for consumers by a thorough evaluation of the Marin Municipal Water District operation.

The recent comment that I would refuse any donation to fund my campaign is erroneous. I welcome donations for my campaign from people who believe as I do on the issues. My goal is to be independent of special-interest groups . . .

I have had valuable experience on the boards of directors of large companies. I am not connected with McPhail's, Inc. or any other relatives in Marin County. I am presently owner of my independently-owned business, the Appliance Center, located in Petaluma.

Few Have Courage To Follow Christ

I concur in your conviction that the teachings (and, I would add, the person) of Christ provides everything youth seeks. The difficulty is that our lack of courage as Christians does not necessarily commend those teachers (or that person). To one who found his security in affluence, Jesus said, "Sell everything you have, and give to the poor, and you will have riches in heaven; and come, follow me." There just aren't many of us doing that kind of selling these days.

Maybe you're right. Maybe faith grows taller where it is forbidden!

America Needs More Writers Like Treichler

On March 4, an article appeared in the Independent Journal by Rob Treichler titled, "Shortages, Price Rises — But Not Any Profits."

Our republic has a most alarming, yes, a real tragic need for far more American writers like Rob Treichler coming to the defense of our competitive free enterprise system. It was this system which made America the most productive country in the world, and at the same time gave workers more abundance and freedom than any other nation.

Today we have far too many liberal politicians, newscasters and writers who seem to think the word profit, which is the very life blood of our competitive free enterprise system, is a dirty word. Especially those bureaucrats in our federal government who man the guns at such agencies as FPC, EPA and FTC. . . All of them fail to recognize the all-important fact, that a profit must be made in order to attract the necessary capital to remain in any business.

The federal government should be completely forced out of every type of business and this includes the federal post office system. The federal government uses deficits, not profits, in order to remain in the various types of business ventures. Perhaps this is why the word profit has become almost obscene in the liberal bureaucratic lexicon.

Let's not fall into the liberal trap that would convert our United States competitive free enterprise system from that of abundance to one of scarcity.

Now Rhus Superdendron Saved Marin From Overpopulation

Historians now know it was the evolution of a new, uncommonly virulent and incredibly hardy strain of poison oak that saved Marin from the ravages of overpopulation in the late 1970s.

But the amazing story, received short shrift when first advanced a decade ago by the now-famous Ingrid Montoya in a paper before the American Society for the Advancement of Noxious Weeds.

Ignoring catcalls from the disbelieving scientists, Ms. Montoya had to shout to be heard as she read:

"THE FIRST INKLING that the heretofore-tame poison oak plant had mutated came in early 1978 when County Health Officer Mervyn P. Kaltwasser reported a strange botanical find in Nicasio.

"A county road crew, clearing weeds from the roadside, was engulfed by wave after wave of swaying plants that swarmed up an embankment.

"The workers, hopelessly outnumbered and with only a few rakes for weapons, didn't stand a chance. Within a minute it was all over. A reconnaisance party sent out the next morning could find only seven very large red welts beside the truck.

"THUS BEGAN a year-long guerrilla action on the part of Rhus Superdendron, as the mutated variety came to be called.

"Panicked county supervisors budgeted $500 million to an elite oak patrol, whose members were airlifted to remote corners of Marin at the drop of a twig or the rustle of a branch.

"Meanwhile, the outlying communities of West Marin were abandoned and construction crews worked feverishly to throw up an immense wall around the more populated areas of the county.

"For awhile, a semblance of life as usual went on behind the wall, but finally, as spores from the dreaded Rhus drifted in on sea breezes to decimate the residents, a mass exodus began.

"From their headquarters-in-exile on Alcatraz Island, county supervisors continued to direct an all-out war against the poison oak bands.

"BUT THEIR EFFORTS were fruitless until a 9-year-old boy, Herkimer Stewart, stepped foreward with a horrible admission and a brilliant suggestion.

"The admission: He had created rhus superdendron by crossing common poison oak with venus flytrap, for agility, with scotch broom, for hardiness, and with wandering Jew, for mobility.

"The suggestion: dispatch specially-trained gardeners on nightly raids to feed, water and cultivate the poisonous plants as they slept.

"Everybody knows that plants are so perverse they'll shrivel up and die if they're prized highly enough,' he said.

"Sure enough, within weeks there wasn't a living rhus superdendron in all of Marin."

President Willing To Give Up 42 Tape Recordings, But . . .

WASHINGTON — It looks as if there's going to be some hard bargaining between President Nixon's lawyer, James St. Clair, over the tapes and evidence the House Judiciary Committee has subpoenaed. While the president has said he was willing to co-operate fully with the House so we could put Watergate behind us, Mr. St. Clair as his defense lawyer has to think of protecting his client.

"MR. DOAR, THIS IS James St. Clair. How's everything on the Hill?"

"Just fine, Mr. St. Clair. What's new at the White House that we should know about?"

"That's what I'm calling about. You guys didn't have to send us a subpoena. We promised we'd co-operate with you fully. When you voted a subpoena it made it sound as if we were dragging our feet."

"I know."

"Now look, Doar, we want to be reasonable down here and we're willing to give you everything you've asked for."

"You are?"

"Yes, with the only exception that it doesn't harm the presidency or violate the Constitution. As Mr. Nixon's lawyer I believe I'm in the best position to know what is relevant to your impeachment hearings. I've sifted through every piece of evidence and I give you my word a lot of the stuff you're requesting is not worth fighting for."

"HOW DO WE KNOW that if we haven't heard the tapes?"

"I heard them, and the president's heard them, and H. R. Haldeman's heard them. Why can't you take our word for it that there is absolutely nothing on them that can contribute to Mr. Nixon's impeachment? What on earth would we have to gain by keeping evidence from your committee?"

"I'm certain, Mr. St. Clair, that what you say is true, but there are some members of the committee who have a thing about presidential tapes. Now are you going to turn them over to us?

"That's what I'm calling about. We're willing to give you 42 tapes as requested."

"Then we don't have a problem."

"BUT THE PRESIDENT feels he should have the right to decide what 42 tapes to give you. That's only fair."

"I don't get you."

"The president is offering instead of the Kleindienst telephone conversation of April 15 a tape of his call to congratulate Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins for winning the Super Bowl. The president says it's a much jazzier tape and he's sure the entire House committee would enjoy it.

"He is also offering in place of his conversations with Haldeman and Ehrlichman on April 16, 1973, the complete unedited tape of his talk with David Eisenhower on Feb. 12, 1969. He would also like to substitute the Colson material you've asked for with a tape of a very funny meeting he had in the Oval Office with Miss Cherry Blossom of 1972.

"TO SHOW HIS good faith, the president has authorized me to turn over to you the tapes of all the prayer breakfasts at the White House, as well as a complete tape of Pearl Bailey singing 'When The Saints Go Marching In.' Furthermore, he is throwing in a tape of a personal message he dictated to Secretariat when he won the triple crown.

"He feels these tapes are something the House could play over and over again. Believe me, Mr. Doar, the ones you people have asked for are dull and repetitious, and you'd be bored to death. The ones we're offering you would give you hours of listening pleasure."

"Thanks, Mr. St. Clair, but no thanks. We still want the tapes we asked for."

"Okay Doar. The president asked me to give you a message if you refused his generous offer."

"Waht is that?"

"He told me to tell you: 'That does it. No more Mr. Nice Guy.'"

U.S. Industrial Production Off

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the fourth consecutive month, U.S. industrial production declined in March.

The Federal Reserve Board report Monday said the 0.5 per cent decline confirmed earlier administration predictions that the Gross National Product would be negative for the first quarter of this year.

Production fell in all categories except business equipment for March, the board said. Manufacture of business equipment was estimated to be 0.1 per cent higher than in February, and 7.3 per cent ahead of year-ago figures.

New Horizon Opens In Mountainous Air Travel

By PETER TONGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

COURCHEVELLE, France — It looked, for all the world, as if the plane was flying straight into the side of a mountain.

And it was.

In fact, the postage-size airport here is just that —a sloping mountainside, 6,000 feet up among the craggy peaks of the French Alps.

Hair raising? Not at all. It was as smooth as any landing I have experienced, but it also was unusual enough for the 20 passengers to applaud.

Every day the pilots of Air Alpes bring planes into "altiports" like this one here in the Alps. In 12 years of flying they have honed the techniques of uphill landing and set the standards for others to follow.

In fact, their methods now are being exported, to open up a whole new spectrum of possibilities for air travel in mountainous areas.

The Kingdom of Nepal, for instance, has an airways corporation of its own — something undreamed of until the expertise of Air Alpes came along. Nepal's two Canadian-built Twin Otters fly in and out of Himalayan stations where hitherto only expensive-to-operate helicopters and slow pack animals could make it.

Madagascar and Peru are two other mountainous states currently negotiating with Air Alpes and the Swiss and Austrian governments have made a study of their unusual system.

Air Alpes' airport plan calls for uphill runways, simply chiseled out of existing mountainsides. Little earth-moving needs to be done. Planes land uphill — using gravity for quick slowdowns. They take off downhill — using gravity to get rapidly airborne.

At Courchevelle all aircraft I watched were off the ground well before the end of the 300 meter (330-yard) runway. A level runway would have to be twice as long, according to an Air Alpes spokesman. In fact it would require the blasting away of almost an entire mountaintop — a technically unfeasible and financially impossible task.

Michele Ziegler, the man who got the idea, began Air Alpes because of his love of skiing. The overnight train from Paris to the mountainside resorts was too long; the flight into Geneva and two or more hours of bus ride thereafter too tedious.

Now this speedy air service is helping overseas visitors, too, as well as local skiers. In March this year a group of Americans were strapping on their skis in Courchevelle exactly eight hours after leaving New York.

Little wonder the company is succeeding. In 1962 it began with a staff of three — one pilot (Ziegler himself), one mechanic, and a secretary cum bookings clerk. Now the staff numbers 185, of which 64 are pilots. That's 20 pilots and four mechanics up on last year's tally. There was some experimenting before the company set maximum runway standards; no more than a 20 per cent slope.

Landing, of course, requires maneuvers that differ from the conventional. Watching a plane land here is quite an experience. It circles into the valley, dips out of sight before rising into view like some giant Condor just as it is about to land.

"We're the only people who fly up to land," says an Air Alpes pilot, adding that he wouldn't switch to conventional airline flying under any circumstances.

At present the company uses mostly Twin Otters —20-passenger planes. But soon it hopes to add the four-engined 50-seater DHC-7, which de Havilland currently is developing.

This aircraft will provide mountain airlines with "big-plane" capacity. "Its short take-off-and-landing ability will be well within the capacity of the altiports to handle," says an Air Alpes spokesman.

Will altiport flying services one day be fairly widespread around the world? Very definitely, says the company, especially areas where rugged terrain makes major highway construction a very costly undertaking.

Arrests On Drunken Driving Up

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — During the first three months of this year drunken driving arrests by the California Highway Patrol increased by 10.6 per cent pushing the figure to 32,117, Commissioner Walter Pudinski said yesterday.

Pudinski said the 32,117 arrests through March compares to 29,047 apprehensions for the same period a year ago.

He said in areas where driving while intoxicated was a primary factor in accidents, the number of automobile crashes declined by 8.5 per cent from 3,656 last year to 3,347 this year.

"The decline in such accidents is encouraging," Pudinski said. "However, it was a much smaller percentage decline than the decrease in total reportable accidents which dropped 29.7 per cent from 13,022 last year to 9,157 in 1974."

Old Paddlewheeler Destroyed By Fire

VICKSBURG, Miss. (UPI) — The 73-year-old paddlewheeler Sprague which was the setting for the motion picture "Showboat," has been destroyed by fire.

The largest sternwheeler ever built was engulfed in flames Monday night at its mooring in the Mississippi River and was called a "total loss" by Mayor Bullard.

Brown Proposes State Agency For Collecting Petroleum Data

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A state operated energy corporation to regulate privately owned oil companies was proposed yesterday by California Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Brown, a Democratic candidate for governor, told newsmen that a California Energy Corp. was needed to collect petroleum data to keep the public and government informed during energy crises.

The corporation, according to Brown, would control oil produced from land owned by the state outright or on which it controls the mineral rights.

At the same time, Brown said the first step of the Energy Corporation should be to halt the sale of state-owned oil now going to private firms.

"In addition," Brown said, "the oil depletion allowance, which is costing California taxpayers $25 million every year, must be repealed."

Brown said he became "very suspicious" of oil companies because less than a month ago California motorists were forced to wait in long lines and "now that the government has virtually met every oil industry demand, the lines have suddenly disappeared."

Brown said oil companies have received massive tax breaks from government for the past 50 years.

Now it's time to let the petroleum industry know that we are tired of being pushed around," Brown said.

The state must enact an excess profits tax on the oil industry, he said, to eliminate unfair "windfall" profits due to the energy crisis.

Brown's plan also called for: The repeal of the oil depletion allowance which he said is costing California taxpayers $25 million each year.

Legislation be passed requiring automobiles sold in California to clearly list gasoline mileage.

An end to joint bidding by oil companies for government leases.

Legislation requiring major oil companies to sell petroleum to independent refineries and independent gas stations at the same price they charge their own franchise operations.

Note About This Auction: Iran, the largest producer of handwoven carpets and rugs, has been backward, slow-moving country for centuries. Suddenly with the advent of industry, oil and free education, it zoomed to the 20th Century. As a result children, the majority of the weavers and who earned only 60c a day, are lured away from the ancient art of weaving. And in our opinion, in the next five years this great art will be so scarce and will be hard to find. European collectors and dealers are rushing to America and collect these carpets. We urge the residents of San Rafael to attend this fabulous auction.

Word Brighter Now On Gas Tax Dollars

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Revised estimates indicate the states will lose about half a billion dollars in gasoline tax revenues this year because of the energy crisis — a big improvement over original predictions.

A report issued yesterday by the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations said increasing gasoline supplies had radically improved the prospects for state government revenues.

Based on the oil shortage situation that existed in February, the report said, the commission "had predicted a gloomy $2.2 billion loss in gas tax revenues in 1974 if the February situation had prevailed throughout the year.

"But March and April allocations and the lifting of the Arab oil embargo indicate an estimated loss of half a billion dollars."

The report credited the change to improvements in the allocation program of the Federal Energy Office, leakage of oil through the Arab embargo and the lifting of the embargo itself.

Gasoline taxes generaly contribute about 11 per cent of total state tax revenues, the report said.

The median state gasoline tax is eight cents per gallon.

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Ciresoaia, a village in northern Romania, can't kick its habit, hundreds of years old, of planting a cherry tree at the birth of every village child. The village is now surrounded by 65,000 cherry trees.

MUTE TESTIMONY — This fence in West Marin once marched across the terrain, a single entity in complete alignment. Then, the great temblor of 1906 tore the fabric of the land leaving this 15-foot gap to testify to the power of the event. (Photos by Alfred M. Arn)

NORTHWARD BOUND — This poster on the National Parks Service's revamped Earthquake Trail in West Marin shows how California was shaped 40 million years ago (right sketch) and how it looks today (center). From Point Reyes in Marin to Baja California, a vast sliver of land has steadily drifted north along the San Andreas fault and is destined during another 40 million years to continue on its way till it has become an island with Point Reyes in the vicinity of today's Aleutians.

Earthquake Trail Looks At The Past, To The Future

By ANNE WEST

A line of fence posts wrenched 15 feet askew by the violent earthquake of 1906 . . . and a vision of the Point Reyes peninsula sailing ahead of Los Angeles and Baja California into the cold northern waters of Alaska 40 million years from now.

These practical and theoretical demonstrations of the ever-moving earth mark the beginning and end of the new Earthquake Trail in Point Reyes National Seashore. The trail will be dedicated in ceremonies at 10 a.m. today, 68th anniversary of 1906 temblor.

The revamped trail is the result of criticism by a group of Foothill College geology students who toured the old one with their professor, Timothy Hall, about a year ago.

"Dull and confusing" was their judgment of the existing signs and route, according to William L. Germeraad, ranger in charge of environmental interpretation.

Challenged to do better, they worked for months with park officials to draw up new exhibits and reroute portions of the trail, located at the epicenter of the quake which devastated San Francisco and Marin County cities nearly 70 years ago.

The new trail signs, some showing old photographs, explain the still-visible features of the 1906 shock as one episode in the long history of the San Andreas fault and the drifting continents of the earth's surface.

The trail now starts near park headquarters, where blue posts set along a slight hillside fold outline the fault line — and all that is left of the jagged, hip-deep trench opened in 1906.

At a stream crossing, walkers look uphill to a fence apparently ending without reason, while 15 feet away from the end post, another fence disappears through the trees. Once a single line, the fence was offset in the dramatic 1906 lurch as the entire peninsula ground northward along the fault.

Seen from the fence, the blue posts marking the fault disappear at the big barn near headquarters which sits astride the line. During the quake, the larger western portion of the barn moved 16 feet and pulled the eastern side off its foundations.

Up a rise formed by the grinding pressures at the earth's crust, hikers find the answer to a mystery that once puzzled geologists: Why are the rocks different on either side of the fault?

A geologic map of the state as it looked 40 million years ago shows that granitic rocks were once concentrated in the central and southern portion, while softer formations of the franciscan period dominated the north.

Continental drift by two great "plates" on the earth's surface — the Pacific to the west and the American on the east — brought the granitic rocks northward in gradual shifts along the 650 miles of the San Andreas fault.

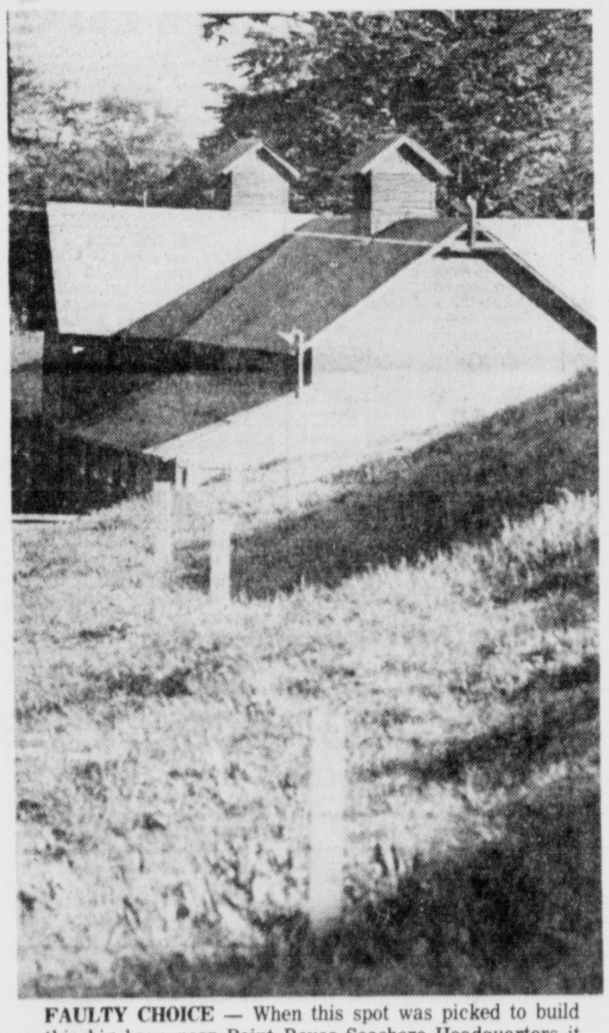

The peaceful Olema Valley, visible at the trail's crest, was created in a deep ocean trench, then thrust upward as the fault sliced through the earth's crust.

At the trail's end, walkers learn that the continents of today are descendants of a "super-continent" named Pangaea which began to break into pieces some 200 million years ago.

Sliding about on the molten layers deep in the earth "at speeds of several feet per century," the enormous pieces began forming the continental lines and the mountain ranges visible in our moment of history.

For the future, the continental timetable showed Point Reyes drifting out to sea ahead of a long island including Los Angeles and Baja California. In 13 million years, at a rate of two inches a year, Los Angeles lies north of San Francisco. In 40 million years, Point Reyes reaches the Aleutian trench while Baja California is sliding past Oregon and Washington.

As for mankind's outlook for the earthquakes which have shattered cities, Germeraad said, "It happened in 1906. It will happen again, and again."

FAULTY CHOICE — When this spot was picked to build this big barn near Point Reyes Seashore Headquarters it was not known that beneath lay the San Andreas Fault, whose perilous course is marked by this line of posts. The barn got the wrenching of its life in 1906.

Fairfax Group Seeks To Block Camp Lilienthal Tennis Courts

A small band of residents made its first move yesterday to forestall, if not block, conversion of picturesque Camp Lilienthal near Fairfax into a private 10-court tennis club.

The site has long served Bay Area Boy Scouts and is located off Bolinas Road in the Cascade Canyon area west of Fairfax.

Ed Schoon, of the protesting Monte Cristo area neighbors, testified before the county environmental hearing officer, Joel E. Rubey, that the Redwood Racquet Club's environmental report fails to deal in depth with a number of concerns.

Besides noise and traffic, residents questioned drainage, grading, lighting and police and fire protection.

Rubey, while accepting the document as a preliminary report, directed Madrone Associates of San Rafael to amend their report by responding to the concerns. The firm has 15 days to respond.

Robert Sherman of the Monte Cristo tract said he favors the project because it would guard against fire.

Yesterday's hearing on the report did not delve into the merits of the project but was limited to environmental considerations.

Whether the tennis club is desirable or not will be considered by the county planning department when it decides if a use permit should be issued. Its decision will almost certainly be appealed to the planning commission by either the opponents or proponents.

Under current zoning, up to 20 single-family homes could be built on the site, though the availability of water would probably limit the number to 16.

The land is owned by the Bay Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, which is anxious to sell in order to solve financial problems elsewhere, a spokesman told Rubey yesterday.

It was used as a summer camp from 1930 to 1972 and several playing fields are proposed as the sites for the 10 tennis courts.

The environmental report claims up to 65 trees of varying size and type would have to be removed, however.

The club envisions 350 memberships. Besides tennis, swimming facilities also would be provided.

Anniversary Plans Viewed

The Peninsula Environmental Council for Tiburon and Belvedere will sponsor an effort to install hanging flower baskets in the two cities in honor of the Tiburon triple anniversary celebration in June.

President Diana J. Bradley said the council also decided last night to hold a contest for the best window decorations honoring the anniversary in Tiburon stores.

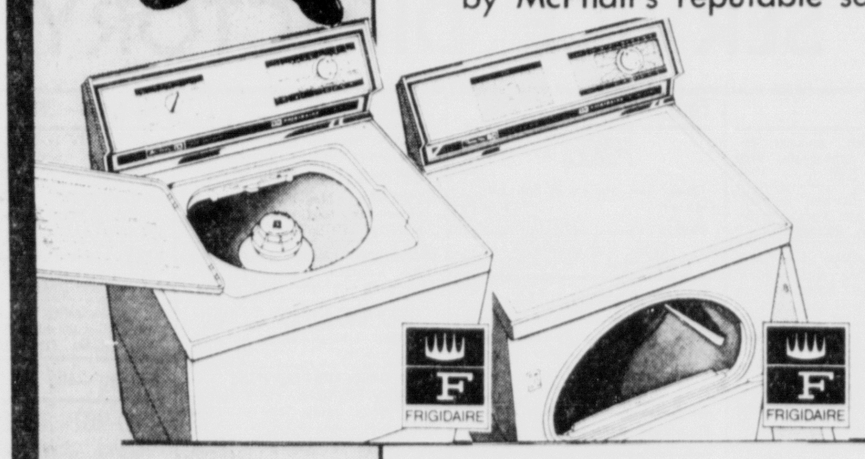

The council also set June 8 for the annual Tiburon bike path and beach cleanup.

Nixon Tells DAR The Nation Must Lead World Toward Peace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said today that America must regain its sense of national destiny and lead the world's search for peace.

In a patriotic type speech to 4,500 members of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) at their "Continental Congress" in colorful, flagbedecked Constitution Hall, the President recounted the wars of this century, and said the nation must meet the challenge "to provide the leadership so the next generation can be the first generation in a century that does not have a war."

The President spoke for 25 minutes, concentrating entirely on the nation's leadership in world peace efforts. He did not refer to Watergate, the House impeachment investigation or domestic politics.

"There is no other nation in the free world today, among the industrial powers that can assume the leadership," he said. "The peace of the world is in our hands."

Nixon said the great strength of the American Revolution was that it was "a continuing revolution throughout the 200- year history of our nation," and that America has a sense of great mission. The United States, he said, "stood for something more than material strength and wealth" and must continue that responsibility.

"America came into the world not just for ourselves but the contributions we could give to all of mankind," he said.

Nixon brought cheers from the beribboned delegates when he said:

"At a time when so much attention is given to those who deserted America, let's give attention to those 2.5 million who served America in Vietnam."

The DAR's president-general, Mrs. Donald Spicer, welcomed the President with the message that the DAR members wanted to "show you how firm our support is and how deeply we believe." The hall erupted into cheers.

CBS Plans A Special For Women

NEW YORK (AP) — Two weeks from today, CBS News will air a one-hour daytime news special for women. It eventually could become a regular weekly event, according to a CBS executive in charge of the project.

The show is called "Magazine" and is hosted by correspondents Sylvia Chase and Charles Kuralt. Employing a format similar to CBS' "60 Minutes," it'll report on such diverse stories as hysterectomies, economical supermarket shopping and how soap operas are put together.

How did the show come about. Was it prompted by pressure from women's activist groups who feel daytime television should offer its predominately female audience more than soap and games?

"No, I wouldn't think so," says Bill Leonard, a CBS News senior vice president. He said it basically stemmed from a suggestion made about 1½ years ago by CBS program chief Fred Silverman.

If the show gets the reaction CBS hopes it will, he said, it could become a weekly series in future years.

It isn't a low-budget effort, he said. Although he declined to say what the May 2 show is costing, he said the price tag was similar to that of a prime time documentary — in the $50,000 to $100,000 range.

Challenge To Closed Session Brings Arrest

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A newspaper reporter was arrested Tuesday when he challenged the legality of a state Public Utilities Commission regulation that closes "decision conferences" to the public.

San Francisco Examiner reporter R. L. Revenaugh was arrested when he refused to leave the PUC session. He was lifted from his seat in the conference room by two state policemen and marched out the door, the newspaper said.

Revenaugh was booked on a misdemeanor charge of disturbing a lawful meeting. Bail was set at $250.

The PUC is the state agency which, among other things, regulates rates of Pacific Telephone Co. and Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

They'll Move Club To Get At Walton

Talk about being in demand, Bill Walton is really a wanted man. Because of his ability to put a basketball through a hoop, he will become a millionaire very soon.

A report out of Los Angeles from Walton's advisor, Sam Gilbert, said that the American Basketball Association will move a club to Los Angeles if Walton, All-America center for UCLA, signs a contract with a league team.

Gilbert said he had offers from both the ABA and National Basketball Association and they are about the same. The Portland Trail Blazers and the San Diego Conquistadors have the NBA and ABA draft rights to Walton, college basketball's player of the year for the past three seasons. According to wire reports, Gilbert said the Conquistadors would relinquish the rights to Walton if he agrees to play for a proposed franchise based in the Los Angeles Sports Arena.

Walton has been in Mexico for three weeks and is not expected to make a decision until later this month. The persons who got to know Walton last summer when he was attending school at Sonoma State College have their own views. The I-J sports Sonoma man, Paul Dworin, says that from what he has been able to glean from those who know Walton, he will sign with Portland. His report is that Walton doesn't want to play in the ABA, and he especially doesn't want to get into a bidding war.

In any event, the word is that he will play for only a few years before retiring in favor of law school. After all, it's only money.

NEXT TRIP FOR the Northern California Giants Boosters will be May 9-16 when Prez Allan Murray of Kentfield chaperons his followers to Atlanta and Cincinnati. "Sure, we'll see Hank Aaron and we'll inspect first hand the spots where his 714th and 715th homers landed," said Murray, "but seeing the Giants win is our main objective, and we'd like to see seven wins on this trip."

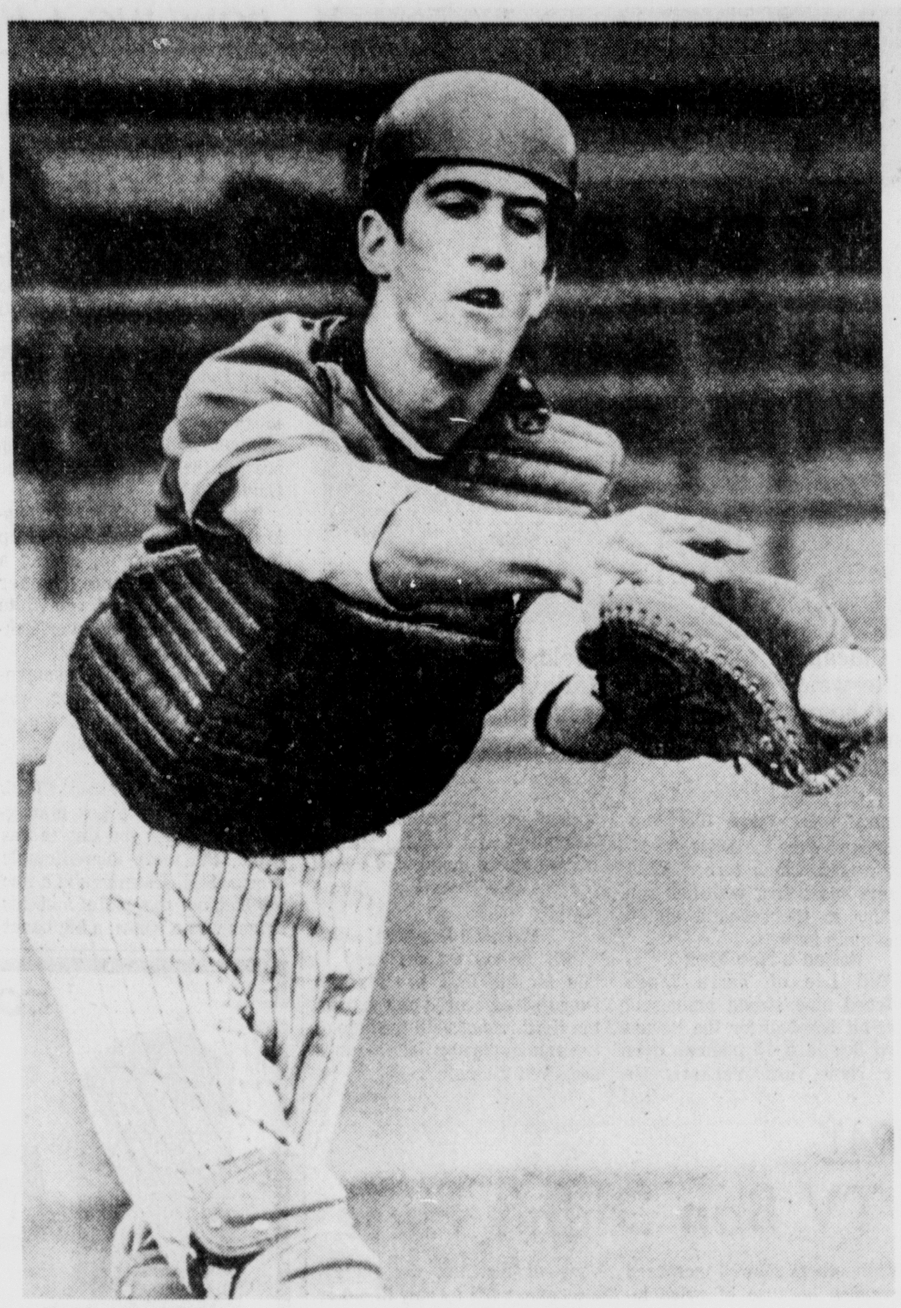

For the boosters' sake, I hope that road tour is more successful than the current one in which the Giants have lost five of six games.

The boosters will fly to Atlanta May 9 for four games in Braves Stadium then head for Cincy and three more games plus an Ohio riverboat party on a paddle wheel steamer. Murray is still taking reservations at P.O. Box 570, San Rafael.

TERRY HENNE OF NOVATO will be competing in the Washington Wheelchair Games in Seattle May 4-5 and says she will try to enter all eight events — javelin, discus, softball throw, 60-yard dash, 100, 440, 880 and 440 relay. "I'll be in everything," says she. And she'll be pooped, say I.

TWO YOUNG HOCKEY players from Marin, defenseman Russ Dotson of San Rafael and goalie John Rotar of Corte Madera returned home the other day after playing for a Berkeley team in the National Midget Hockey Tournament at Niagara Falls, N.Y. The Berkeley team lost three times, 12-1 to eventual champ Detroit, 2-0 to Duluth, Minn., and 7-3 to Amherst, N.Y.

Junior hockey is really big in the midwest and east and the Berkeley kids found that some of the opposing teams played as many as 70 games a season (Berkeley plays 20 games per). "Detroit played more games this season than Russ has played in four years," said Dotson's mom.

Hard Part Arrives After ABA's Draft

Rival Loop Must Sign Selections

NEW YORK (UPI) — Calling out names of college players and those from the rosters of the National Basketball Association was easy, now comes the hard part for the would-be body snatchers of the American Basketball Associaton: signing the players.

In addition to the college draft, 50 NBA names were also selected by the 10 ABA teams yesterday in what was billed as the first-ever open draft of NBA players. But it may amount to little more than a publicity ploy if the ABA doesn't actively pursue them and the private feeling among the coaches, general managers and owners at the draft was that they'll be lucky if they can land more than a half-dozen.

The Utah Stars provided a surprise of their own when they selected a high school player, 6-foot-11 Moses Malone of Petersburg, Va., who was tabbed in the college draft.

The ABA clubs also announced the results of their secret college draft held recently and then picked up with the third round.

Surprises For S.F.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros were full of surprises for the San Francisco Giants last night but not the kind of surprises the Giants would prefer.

Leftfielder and cleanup hitter Bob Watson bunted home the winning run in the sixth inning and reliever Ken Forsch had his fast ball sinking instead of rising in a 3-2 victory.

"I don't think I've ever bunted against this team before," Watson said. "I guess most teams don't think of the fourth, fifth and sixth positions as bunting but Preston told us all to be ready."

Watson was ready last night. He bunted down the third base line, forcing Dave Kingman to field the ball and make a throw to first. Kingman threw wild for an error and Bob Gallagher rushed home from third for the winning run.

Forsch got his second save of the season and made starter Claude Osteen a winner for his second straight outing with two outstanding innings of relief.

Forsch said it was the first look the Giants have had at his adjusted fast ball which now sinks instead of rising.

"I think it might have surprised them Giants."

Marin 'Cats' Yetter Belts Novato, 12-2

Bob Yetter smashed a home run, triple and single and drove in four runs yesterday to lead Marin Catholic High School to a 12-2 truncing of visiting Novato in a Marin County Athletic League baseball game.

Yetter's homer, a two-run shot to left field, capped a four-run first inning for the Wildcats (2-1). His triple followed a double by Len Kristensen and triple by Mike Nivens in the third. He then stole home.

Terra Linda Scores Five In First For Win

Terra Linda High School (1-1), scoring in the opening inning for the first time all year, struck for five runs en route to a 7-3 Marin County Athletic League baseball victory over Tamalpais (1-2) yesterday at Albert Field.

Mike DeMattei hit a run-scoring double and Buck McCusker and Jim McCarthy added RBI singles. Three Tam errors aided the scoring.

Vallejo Track Star Is Too Much For Petaluma

There was just a little too much Kenezar Smith for Petaluma High School yesterday.

Smith won four individual events to lead visiting Vallejo to a 76-60 North Bay League track and field victory over the Trojans.

The highlight for Petaluma (1-2) were performances by Jose Martinez and Mike Brandner, who won two events each.

Martinez took the 100 (10.1) and 220-yard dashes (23.0) and Brandner doubled in the distances, taking the mile (5:09.2) and the two-mile (10:19.3). He shared first in the mile with Jon Sisler and Jim Hanson of Petaluma.

The scheduled Rancho Cotate High School at Cardinal Newman (Santa Rosa) track and field meet was postponed because of a school holiday at Carindal Newman.

No Regrets For Cubs' Slugger

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

George Mitterwald has no regrets about his three-homer, eight-runs batted in game but he wishes he hadn't seen that "take sign" flashed by Manager Whitey Lockman of the Chicago Cubs.

If he hadn't been on the alert, he thinks he might now be the eighth player in modern baseball history to hit four homers in one game. As it is he is one of many, as they say in the record books, to hit three homers in a game since 1900.

Mitterwald, acquired by the Cubs from the Minnesota Twins in a winter trade, hit three homers, including a grand slam, and drove in eight runs yesterday as the Cubs downed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 18-9.

"I saw a good pitch to hit when the 'take sign' was on," said Mitterwald. "The first homer was on a hanging curve and the others on fast balls. After that I tried not to think of home runs."

Mitterwald laid off "the good pitch" in the fourth inning during which the Cubs scored five runs to build their lead to 15-4. He eventually walked, forcing in a run in that inning and doubled in his final appearance at the plate.

Rick Monday, Jerry Morales and Bill Madlock also homered for the Cubs while Willie Stargell, Richie Hebner and Richie Zisk connected for the Pirates.

The Philadelphia Phillies swamped the St. Louis Cardinals, 12-5, the Los Angeles Dodgers routed the Cincinnati Reds, 14-1, the Houston Astros shaded the San Francisco Giants, 3-2, the Montreal Expos defeated the New York Mets, 7-4, and the San Diego Padres downed the Atlanta Braves, 6-1, in other National League games.

In the American League, it was Boston 4 New York 3, Milwaukee 5 Cleveland 4, Baltimore 6 Detroit 1, Texas 4 Kansas City 2, California 5 Minnesota 3, and Chicago 4 Oakland 3.

Phils 12 Cards 5

Mike Anderson drove in three runs with two singles, a double and a homer as the Phillies won their sixth straight game, their longest winning streak since April, 1970.

Expos 7 Mets 4

Steve Rogers pitched a six-hitter and Tim Foli drove in three runs with a pair of singles as the Expos handed the Mets their sixth straight defeat.

Dodgers 14 Reds 1

Steve Garvey hit two homers and drove in four runs and Jimmy Wynn hit a three-run homer to pace the Dodgers' 17-hit attack which turned a 2-1 game into a rout with four-run rallies in the seventh, eighth and ninth innings.

Boston 4, New York 3

Bill Lee of Terra Linda pitched nine strong innings of five-hit baseball for the Boston Red Sox in a 4-3 triumph over the New York Yankees. He walked one and struck out two. Juan Beniquez doubled leading off the eighth inning and scored the go-ahead run on Bernie Carbo's single.

Padres 6 Braves 1

Jim McAndrew scattered 10 hits for his first win for San Diego which scored four runs in the third inning with the help of two-run singles by John Grubbs and Fred Kendall.

DOWLING A HERO

Baseball A Funny Game, White Sox Boss Agrees

OAKLAND (UPI) — Alvin Dark was right the other day when he called baseball a funny game.

He was referring to his own John Donaldson, an obscure infielder playing in the late innings because of managerial changes and then winding up scoring the winning run for the Oakland A's.

Brian Downing, almost as unknown a Donaldson, wound up the hero last night, hitting a two-run eighth-inning homer while leading the Chicago White sox to a 5-3 decision over Oakland.

Downing, a third baseman-outfielder turned catcher, was in the game only because of injury to regular Chicago backstop Ed Herrmann.

"Alvin's right," said Chuck Tanner, the White Sox manager. "The longer you stay in this game, the more unpredictable it gets. Still, Downing did a fine job behind the plate and his homer was a bonus, a big bonus for us. You'll notice we haven't played that well, so when you win a game like this you start thinking maybe things will start going your way."

Stan Bahnsen, working on only two days rest, pitched a gutty eight-hitter and wound up with his first victory of the year in his fourth start. He went the distance for the third time and seemingly got stronger as the game wore on.

The victory was only the second of the year for the White Sox in 12 starts. They've lost eight games, four of them by only one run, and two others wound up in 4-4 ties.

Vida Blue started for the A's, now 6-5, and had a 3-2 lead going into the eighth when the White Sox rallied. After one out, Bill Melton doubled and Luis Alvarado ran for him. Ron Santo followed with a sharp single with Alvarado going only as far as third and Dark pulled Blue for Darold Knowles.

"Knowles is a low-ball pitcher," said Dark, "and at that point we needed a double play."

Ken Henderson, the first batter Knowles faced, lifted a long fly to score Alvarado for a 3-3 tie and then Downing jumped on a hanging slider for his third big league homer and first of 1974.

Schreil Has 1 Of Three Best Diving Marks

Three of the Marin County Athletic League's best diving performances took place Tuesday, with San Marin High School's Kirk Schreil turning in the year's best score, 226.02 points.

Redwood's Tom Schindler scored 224.85. Both divers exceeded Schindler's previous 1974 best of 215.60. Drake's Bob Navioux also exceeded 200 points, but didn't even place first in his meet, losing to Schreil.

One other change on the list finds Terra Linda's Mike Russo joining teammate Dan Stewart in a tie for the best time in the 500-yard freestyle, 5:08.5.

FCC REPORTS TODAY

Lifting Of TV Ban Didn't Hurt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) reported today that the lifting of the television blackout by Congress last season had only minor impact on the growing prosperity of professional football, which had its best season ever in 1973.

The FCC also criticized the National Football League for failing to supply complete data on the number of "no-shows" at locally televised games and other financial information.

"The anti-blackout law appears to have had minimal impact on the 26 member teams of the National Football League in its first season of operation," the FCC concluded in a 2-inch thick study.

"It is unlikely that season ticket sales will be adversely affected by the law because there seems to be an excess demand for tickets.

"In fact, 1973 was the best season ever for the NFL, and early reports on ticket sales for the 1974 season indicate a strong demand for available tickets."

The FCC also disputed the NFL claim that concession sales at games would be adversely affected by "noshows" ticket holders who would stay home to watch a home game on television.

"Some concessionaires were probably minimimally hurt by the law," the study commented, "while others showed increased revenues because of price increases."

The report noted that "no-shows" increased in 1973 when 109 games were televised locally over 1972 when only the Super Bowl was televised in the nearby area.

But the FCC said: "... There is no indication that professional football is about to become a 'studio sport,' especially in view of the fact that actual attendance fell by only 57,570 or less than half a per cent."

The study said the major sufferer from the lifting of local blackouts when games are sold out was the radio industry.

"Radio ratings were badly hurt by the law, and radio could lose its importance in certain areas in the broadcasting of home professional teams," the FCC said.

Petaluma Has Doubles Woes

NAPA — It's too bad that the Petaluma High School tennis team has to play doubles matches.

Yesterday, the Trojans (0-3) won three of five single matches, but lost both doubles to host Vintage and dropped a 4-3 North Bay League match.

Doubles: Tim Simmie-Ken Brennan (V) Kirk Weaver-Alan Ritchie, 6-0, 6-1; Petaluma forfeit.

Signing Choices Next Step After ABA's Draft

drafted by the teams were: Virginia—Tom McMillen, Maryland and Jan van Breda Kolff, Vanderbilt; Memphis — Scott Wedman, Colorado and Clarence Walker, West Georgia; Denver—Fly Williams, Austin Peay and Frank Kendrick, Purdue; San Diego—Major Jones, Albany (Ga.) St., and Cliff Pondexter, Long Beach St.; San Antonio — Leonard Robinson, Tennessee State and Colis Temple, LSU; Indiana— Billy Knight, Pittsburgh and Bruce King, Pan American; Carolina—John Lucas, Maryland and Gus Gerard, Virginia; Utah—Joe Merriweather, Southern Illinois and Len Kosmalski, Tennessee; Kentucky—Al Eberhard, Missouri and Sammy High, Tulsa; New York—Brian Winter, South Carolina and Rich Kelly, Stanford.

San Diego drafted Bill Walton last year as a future pick and still retain the rights to the UCLA center.

Only one team, San Diego, has a real chance of landing a player of star quality—Golden State's Cazzie Russell. The slick-shooting 6-foot 5 forward has played out his obligation to the Warriors and, if Conquistador owner Dr. Leonard Bloom can raise about a million dollars, Russell may jump for a multi-year contract.

Other Golden Staters drafted yesterday included: centers George Johnson (Virginia second round), Nate Thurmond (San Antonio first round), forward Clyde Lee (San Antonio second round) and guard Jeff Mullins (Carolina fifth round).

Carolina could persuade Atlanta to release Pete Maravich, their high-priced but unhappy star guard. The Hawks may be willing to drop Maravich, who is committed to them for at least another two years, from their payroll for a high enough bonus. Both player and club are rumored to be at odds with each other.

Now you can go to Santa Cruz or the Russian River or Clear Lake and back again.

On one tank of gas.*

Introducing the Toyota-Chinook Round Tripper.

It takes you just about anywhere within a 120 mile radius and back again! On one 13.7 gal. tank of gas.

That's something you wouldn't expect from a bigger camping vehicle. But this one gets over 19 miles per gallon! (Tests, verified by an independent testing laboratory, were conducted over mountain roads, city streets and freeways in Southern California.)

Yet, you still get the basics you expect in the bigger vehicles. Like a sink. A dinette. An ice box. Carpeting. And a couple of beds.

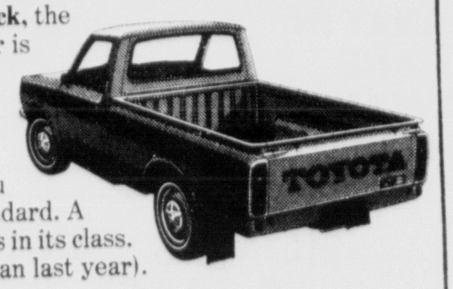

*Distances were measured, according to the AAA, from city hall to city hall by the most direct route. Actual gas mileage, of course, depends on personal driving habits and road conditions.

It's fully integrated, too. Just walk back through the cab and pop up the top for over six feet of headroom.

The Long Bed 2000 Half-Ton truck, the solid foundation the Round Tripper is built on, was chosen "1974 Pickup Truck of the Year" by Pickup, Van and 4-Wheel Drive magazine. Its bed is a foot longer than you'll find on any other small pickup. You get a powerful 1968cc engine, standard. A 4-speed transmission. Biggest tires in its class. Big cab (4 inches more legroom than last year). And much more.

A Low-Key Meet For Tracksters

By LEW CODDINGTON

The men will go off to war this weekend, leaving the women and children at home. This sounds chauvinistic and dull from the women's and children's point of view, but the Drake Relays will solve the problem.

The second annual Relays, scheduled for Saturday at the San Anselmo school, is a track and field meet for varsity girls and freshman boys.

The varsity boys will be competing Saturday in the Santa Rosa Relays, first in a string of weekend invitational meets featuring top competitors from Northern California.

"I got the idea about three or four years ago when I was an assistant coach," said Gerry Kobil, now head coach at Drake and meet director. "It is planned as a program for the little guys.

"We try to keep it low pressure. We let the parents come in and wander around the field — except for the discus area, of course. If they want to go over and watch their son or daughter high jump, great."

Kobil has limited the meet to eight schools in each division, making heats unnecessary. Trophies will be given to the outstanding girl and frosh boy, and a medal will go to the top overall athlete.

Drake, Tamalpais, San Rafael, Analy (Sebastopol) and Bishop O'Dowd (Oakland) have teams in both divisions. The girls also have Moreau (Hayward), Redwood and San Marin, and the frosh boys have Sacred Heart (San Francisco), Sonoma and Healdsburg.

Field events start at 11:30 a.m. and running events at 12:45 p.m.

NEAR THE TOP — Darrell Elder's discus throw of 179-8½ on March 19 is the third longest in the nation so far this year, according to the listings in the second April issue of Track and Field News.

The Redwood star's mark was topped only by Ray Burton of Vacaville, who threw a national record 201-6, and Leon Farmer of Killeen, Texas, with 188-1.

LOCAL ANGLE — Marin track buffs can circle the dates of May 24-25 on their calendars. That's when the North Coast Section meet, the last step to the state meet, will be held at College of Marin.

Terra Linda High is host, and head coach and meet director Barry Amsden already is beaming over the prospect of Rich Kimball's presence.

Kimball, distance ace from De La Salle of Concord, may be saving a sub-four minute mile for Marin fans. He ran 4:05.8 in an invitational meet Saturday.

single in the first and a sacrifice fly in the third. Maddox' sacrifice gave the Giants a 2-1 lead after Houston's Cesar Cedeno homered in the first.

Casa Grande Pitcher Lutz Triggers Win

Casa Grande High School got five hits yesterday, but didn't need any of them thanks to Dan Lutz.

Lutz pitched a two-hit shutout and scored the only run he needed on an error in the second inning to lead the Gauchos to a 3-0 Sonoma County League baseball victory over visiting Healdsburg.

The Gauchos (1-1) added two insurance runs in the sixth on a single by Tom Reese and an error on Rick Hill's pinch-hit grounder to third base.

Gutsy

Ford Courier durability starts with a box-section frame reinforced with seven crossmembers. An independent front suspension features big coil springs and a stabilizer bar. Long, wide rear springs have six leaves. Dual cylinder brakes have 2 brake cylinders at each wheel. The all-steel box is all-welded. And a Courier easily carries up to 1,400 lbs. of payload and people.

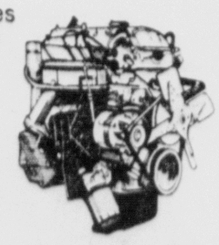

Sporty

The Courier pictured at right and below sports a dress-up kit that includes such optional features as stripes (in your choice of 4 colors), wheel covers, mirrors and a rear step rail or bumper. There's also a popular bike-bar option (right). And a deluxe box cover option (not shown) has tinted side windows. Automatic transmissions and air conditioning are also available options.

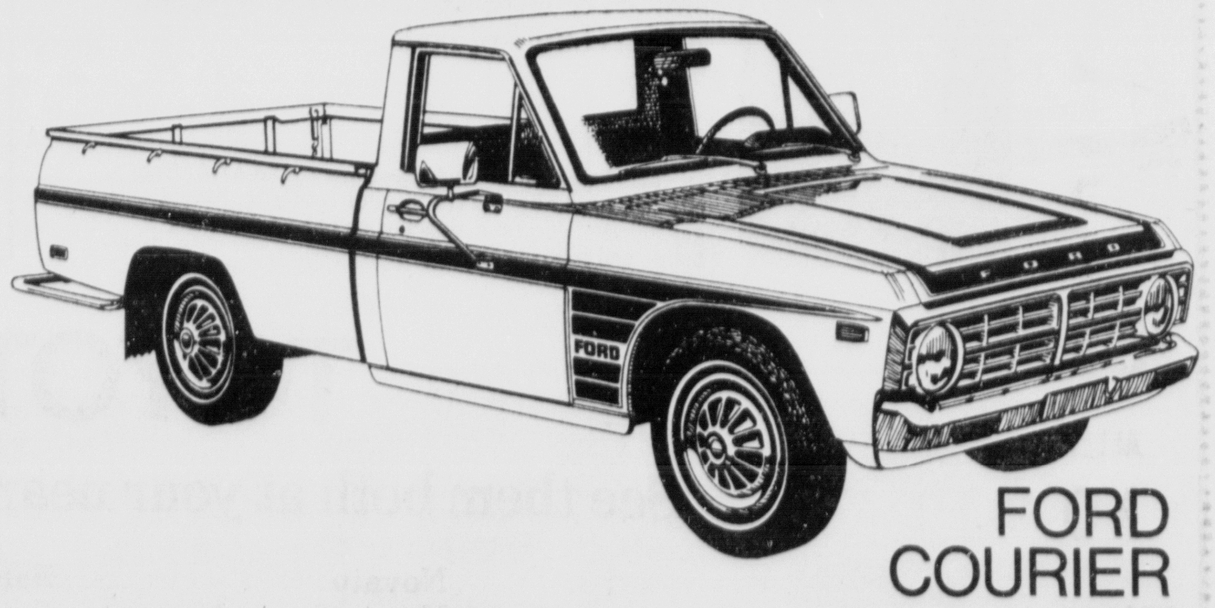

Thrifty

Courier's spirited 1800-cc. engine gives you all the operating economies you'd expect from a 4-cylinder import. And the engine's 5 main bearings . . . for rigidity and strength . . . are designed to help promote trouble-free service over the long haul. For more details on this gutsy little economy pickup . . . and its little import price . . . see your Ford Dealer.

Putting, By George

By LEE TREVINO

I don't know who's the world's best putter, but I know who I'd bet on against anyone else's candidate. George Low probably invented putting.

He's helped a lot of pros, and George's lessons ain't cheap. He doesn't have any far-out ideas about putting, unless you think it's weird to compare a putter with a closet door.

The thumbs control most of the feel between hands and putter. Low wants 'em both on top of the shaft, with only the first joint touching the grip, not extended down the handle.

He advises a soft grip when greens are fast. Use a firm grip on slow greens and uphill putts.

From a slightly open stance, he places his weight on his left heel for better balance, lining up the ball on the inside of his left foot. George makes sure his left index finger is just ahead of the ball at address because it insures firmer contact and puts more overspin on the ball.

A putter swings like a closet door, hitting the ball just as the "door" closes. The club comes back just inside the line of the putt.

Novato Golfers Stunned

Before the season started, Terra Linda High School golf coach Bill O'Bayley suspected his inexperienced team might be capable of an upset or two. He was right.

The Trojans stunned previously undefeated Novato yesterday, 201-203, in a Marin County Athletic League match at Indian Valley Golf Club.

Novato's Rick Anderson was medalist with an even-par 36, but sophomore Dave Kovacs came in with a 37 for Terra Linda and the Trojans' Jim Mullowney, playing only his second match since returning from an appendicitis operation, shot 38.

San Marin also participated, losing to Terra Linda, 201-221. The unusual arrangement made up two previously rained-out matches. Novato and San Marin were not competing against each other.

Contra Costa Shuts Out Marin Tar Nine

SAN PABLO — College of Marin's baseball team was blanked by Contra Costa College yesterday, 5-0, and fell one and one-half games behind in the Camino Norte Conference Northern division race.

Contra Costa leads the division with an 8-3 record while Marin is 7-5. The Tars' overall mark is 13-7.

Frank Fehrenkemp, Contra Costa right-hander, struck out six and walked three in pitching a four-hitter against the Tars. Mark Ruggles was the losing pitcher.

Petaluma Has Doubles Woes

NAPA — It's too bad that the Petaluma High School tennis team has to play doubles matches. Otherwise, the Trojans would be winners.

Yesterday, the Trojans (0-3) won three of five single matches, but lost both doubles to host Vintage and dropped a 4-3 North Bay League match.

Redwood Crew Whips Berkeley

Redwood High School's crew teams swept to victories yesterday against Berkeley High in Corte Madera Creek, running the Larkspur school's record to 10-1.

The Redwood varsity lightweight four-oared team won a 1,500-meter race in 5:41.4, the Redwood junior varsity second, 5:51.8, and Berkeley third, 6:09.1. In the heavyweight fours, Redwood's varsity won by three feet over the J.V. team with a time of 5:33.6. Berkeley was third.

The Redwood oarsmen will be competing against the Stanford and Santa Clara freshmen Saturday at 9:40 a.m. at Belmont Shores in Redwood City.

Times Given For Kindergarten Registration

The Mill Valley School District will hold preregistration for Kindergarteners for next fall next Tuesday and Wednesday between 9 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. and 1 and 3 p.m. at District elementary schools.

(Old Mill School does not have kindergarten; so parents of children living in the Old Mill area should register at Alto School where their youngsters will attend.)

Betty Grimm of the district's guidance office advised that children must be 5 years old on or before Dec. 2, 1974 to register, and proof of age must be provided. Parents should bring dates of various immunizations as well. Physical examination forms will be distributed.

Notices On Sewer Connect Violations

The Novato Sanitary District has begun sending out notices to property owners who have various sewer connection violations, the district manager, Charles A. Joseph, told the district board.

Joseph said that smoke testing last summer turned up 511 such violations in the district, some serious and some minor. He said 40 to 50 notices are being sent each week, so that district officials can discuss the individual problems with residents.

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The Deep Finesse Provides An Extra Chance For Needed Trick

Bridge writers spend some of their time urging players to bid more when they have eights and nines than when they have deuces and threes. It's hard to argue with this kind of advice, but you may wonder about the value of an eight or a nine. Today's hand provides an answer.

Opening lead — ♣ K

NOT INFLUENCED

South wasn't really influenced by his nine of spades. He'd have bid the game even if it had been a lower card. Just the same, that lowly nine saved his bacon.

West began the defense by taking two club tricks. South ruffed the third club and could afford to lose only one more trick.

If South were a bull-in-a-china shop type, he would draw trumps and finesse with the queen of spades. This would lose to the kind, and South would have to lose another spade trick later on. Down one.

NINE PROVES VALUE

This is where the nine of spades proves its value. After ruffing the third club, South should draw two rounds of trumps, with the king and ace. Then he leads a spade from dummy and finesses with the nine from his hand.

This play cannot cost anything. If East has the king of spades, he will still have it later on. South will be able to get back to dummy with a trump to take a normal finesse with the queen of spades at a later trick.

The play gains when East has the jack and ten of spades. In this case, the finesse with the nine drives out the king. No further finesse is needed.

HOPELESS CASE

East cannot save his side by putting up the 10 of spades on the first round of that suit. South will then finesse with the queen, losing to the king. Declarer gets back to dummy and then finesses with the nine of spades to make his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one heart, and the next player bids two clubs. You hold:

♠ - 6 ♦ - K Q 6 2
♥ - A Q 5 2 ♣ - 9 7 6 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three hearts. You count 11 points in high cards and three points for the singleton. That is enough for a double raise, whether or not the opponent has overcalled.

ONE PROBLEM: TRISTARS

Can Lockheed Survive?

By CURTIS J. SITOMER
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

PALMDALE — Can Lockheed - the No. 1 defense contractor in the U.S. and the producer of the much-maligned TriStar L-1011 commercial carrier — survive its current troubles?

Rumors of merger, and even dire predictions of bankruptcy, are heard for this debt-ridden $3 billion aerospace corporation. But more likely, many financial experts say, Lockheed (with a $250 million loan guarantee from the U.S. Government bolstering the confidence of its bank backers) will "hold on" through the economic doldrums of the 1970s, and point toward better times in the 1980s.

Here in the Antelope Valley, just 42 miles north of Los Angeles, amid a picturesque stand of desert Joshua trees, a "showcase" assembly plant puts the final touches on wide-bodied TriStar jets for delivery to Eastern, Trans World Airlines (TWA), Delta, All Nippon (Japan) Airways (ANA), and other domestic and overseas carriers.

Lockheed's TriStar, or L-1011, has been harassed with problems since its jet-engine maker, Rolls-Royce of Britain, collapsed in 1971 — and nearly took its U.S. business "associate" with it.

But in an unprecedented move, Congress stepped in and by a single Senate vote after bitter debate authorized a $250 million loan guarantee to Lockheed to keep it afloat.

With this governmental assurance, the company's financial "angels," 24 lending banks, extended a bankruptcy-averting $650 million in credit. (Just recently, these same financial institutions provided a supplemental $75 million line of credit to bolster Lockheed's current programs.)

Just what is behind Lockheed's continuing fiscal difficulties?

Some critics have constantly carped on poor corporate management.

But most assessors agree that the mammoth corporation with diverse military and commercial enterprises across the globe — and giant fiscal inventories — is particularly vulnerable in a time of general economic slump.

The company's defense business provides a solid profit. For example, its S-3A carrier-based, antisubmarine planes generated more than $500,000 in revenues last year. And its C-130 transport, made by its Georgia division, also enjoyed a sales boom.

However, the TriStar — Lockheed's prime commercial venture — has been caught in a fiscal crunch. Advance sales have not reached expectation. And several current customers have either cancelled or postponed deliveries.

So far, the company has 133 "firm orders" for TriStars. But only 68 have been delivered. (Several airlines also hold 69 options on additional "second buys.")

And now board chairman Daniel J. Houghton and Lockheed president A. Cark Lotchian flatly state (for the first time) that sales of "almost 300 TriStars" ultimately are needed to recover the company's $1.5 billion inventory in the L-1011 program.

Is this possible? Some fiscal experts have their doubts. They feel that a continued economic slump coupled with a fall-off of passenger traffic domestically and worldwide could spell disaster for Lockheed and the L-1011 program.

There are those who propose merger — or a selling off of lucrative defense business to bolster the TriStar account. Some would even rid the company of the LP1011, if possible.

However, company officials, who are extremely reticent about discussing merger or even Lockheed's financial status in general, privately admit that merger (although attractive) might not be too easy to attain.

"And that makes us a relatively difficult merger partner. In fact, any $3 billion company is difficult to merge," he says.

The answer, insist Lockheed spokesmen, is twofold: sell more of the current model TriStars, which have proved economical for airlines which carry up to 400 passengers on "short runs" and develop longer-range L-1011s to meet already established intercontinental needs — such as flying routes between Sydney and Singapore, Chicago and Frankfurt or Tehran and London.

Lockheed sees potential lucrative markets for L-1011s in the Middle East and Far East — particularly in Egypt, Japan, and Australia.

"If we could get five or six smaller airlines to use two or three (TriStars) . . . that's important when you're talking about a $20 million order," explains a company official.

The prognosis for Lockheed? Short range, many experts see a continued cash crunch. And they warn a rash of delivery stretchouts or cancelations could push the company to the brink of bankruptcy.

However, some say Lockheed — in the long run — could pull through via merger, partial selling off of some of its holdings to raise cash, or just "digging in" with additional borrowings until stepped-up L-1011 deliveries (in the late 1970s and 1980s) generate enough cash flow to start paying off the company's big debt.

Matson's Red Wing Shoes at Fourth and Lincoln in San Rafael plans to move about the first of next month to the former Chair Place location at Fourth Street and Tamalpais Avenue, about a block down the street.

"The main reason I'm moving is for offstreet parking and for additional floor space," said owner Arthur Matson of Novato. The new store will be larger and has a lot in the back for customer parking.

Matson's Red Wing Shoes has been operating for eight years at the present location, 802 Fourth Street, corner of Lincoln Avenue. It specializes in a complete line of men's work shoes; hard-to-fit dress shoes for those with unusually large, wide or narrow feet; women's hiking shoes and hiking boots for men and women.

Stradiota of Novato, who has operated it for the past six years but plans to move away and enter another field. The Warrens will keep the name, Gazebo Hair Designs, and add two staff members to bring the total to six.

"It's practical, less expensive than conventional furniture, and an awful lot more comfortable," said Debrovner. "It's the type you don't want to sit in and watch TV because you're sure to fall asleep."

He said foam rubber furniture is modular in that various pieces are interchangeable and can be put together to form new groupings. "For example, you can start with a one-person couch and keep adding until you have a 12-foot semi-circle couch."

Fire Board To Proceed On Building

Tamalpais Fire Protection District directors Tuesday night agreed unanimously to proceed with preliminary plans for a new main fire station to replace the district's old building at 309 Poplar Avenue.

The district building committee will meet next Wednesday at 9 p.m. at the Poplar Avenue station to interview architects for the job, according to Fire Chief Dale N. Bennett.

Directors also canceled all existing agreements with architect Joe Davis Allen, who prepared plans for a station in 1967 when voters defeated a bond election that would have financed the project.

No agreement has been reached on how the building will be financed. Building committee chairman Byron O. Boulware said a second bond election is a strong possibility, probably not until next year, however.
